

WE NOMINATE

Robert Eugene Kuenne, brilliant 46-year old economist, whose specialty — the development of what are known as "large scale interdependent models" — graphically illustrates how highly theoretical research in the social sciences is linked with some of the basic problems confronting the average citizen and his hard-pressed nation. A recent Washington announcement from Congressman Frank Thompson Jr. reported that Public Health Service funds are enabling Kuenne to carry forward a study aimed at providing a more accurate means of setting hospital charges for health services rendered.

Declining to become embroiled in any way in discussions concerning the mushrooming costs facing hospital patients today, a brutal matter in a country with more than 10 per cent of its population over 65, Kuenne points out: "I am not advocating anything at all in this respect; as an economist I simply want to find out if hospitals can price their services more accurately." In the summer months ahead, for the fourth successive summer under the auspices of the Regional Science Research Institute, Philadelphia, he will complete what he calls a "conceptual framework" and will then conduct a two-year test of his theories at a small general hospital in the East.

If the program proves successful — and indications are that it will be — it will provide hospitals, according to Kuenne, "with a more rational method of pricing services to patients than at present" and will offer hospitals a more precise way of costing the internal operations of their different departments and services. In effect, what Kuenne, a Princetonian for some 15 years, is doing is looking at the hospital as an economic entity, much like an industrial firm, composed of interacting but separable medical and para-medical departments which, together, produce final outputs, or "patient-days of treatment."

The depth and range of Kuenne's interests, and his concentration on the theory of large mathematical abstract systems, are reflected in other usages of input-output models. For his doctoral dissertation at Harvard in the mid-1950's he undertook a projection of the impact of the United States Steel Company's plant at Morrisville, Pa., on the surrounding community, determining how much new employment and output would occur in some 45 Delaware Valley industries. Later, in the field of national security, this former academic consultant to the U.S. Naval War College at Newport, R. I., used mathematical techniques in a study devoted to the "optimal stationing" of Polaris missile submarines.

A native of St. Louis, Mo., Kuenne, a topnotch teacher on both the undergraduate and graduate levels, was graduated with a Bachelor of Journalism degree from the University of Missouri in 1917 but, instead of staying with the Fourth Estate, switched over to economics, taking his bachelor's and master's degrees at Washington University, St. Louis. Following graduate studies at Harvard, where he earned another M.A. as well as his Ph.D., he remained on the Harvard faculty until 1955 and was teaching at the University of Virginia when called to Princeton in the fall of 1956. The Princeton years have included a three-year appointment as a Bicentennial Preceptor and promotion to full professor a year ago.

For providing proof positive that the so-called "groves of academe" are vitally concerned with the world around them; for tackling head-on problems of significance to the whole complex of modern society; this able transplanted Missourian is our nominee as

This Is Princeton

TOWN-GOWN
Partnership? Pointing to "a growing entanglement between town and gown," and arguing "a more viable partnership" between Princeton and Princeton University, the Rev. C. Shelby Bonke set the key for a four-hour session last Saturday in which both sides of Nassau Street looked at each other, hard.

It was the symposium jointly sponsored by the University and the Council of Community Services. Housing, land use, drugs, employment, transportation—the joint and often conflicting interests of both campus and community in these facets of Princeton life, came under scrutiny.

More than 300 people signed up for the 15 workshops held in the Engineering Quadrangle. A few didn't come, but 31 who hadn't signed up, did, and Community Services staff counted more than 300 in actual attendance. About two-thirds were "town," the rest "gown."

Each workshop had a leader and a secretary, and this week, the minutes will begin coming in. Next Wednesday, all discussion leaders will meet to draw the strings together and later, a report will be issued.

How Did It Go? Some groups were so deep in discussion they didn't even break for coffee. More than one group plans to meet again to go on talking and listening.

Some University people felt that the townspeople had nothing but criticism. Some townspeople felt the morning was a waste because "the University will go on doing just what it wants to do, anyway."

But Mrs. Nancy Gryzbek, executive director of the Council, is more sanguine. She was delighted with the cooperation the Council received from all levels at the University. And she sees a determination on the part of townspeople not to let things drop.

The Council divided its 300 participants into four workshops on housing and land use; shops on drugs; three on youth recreation; two on resources; and one each on transportation and unemployment.

One of the housing units can be regarded as a sample of Saturday. The leader was Marvin Bresler, a professor of sociology. Among the 20 participants were John P. Moran, who directs all the University's planning and land use projects; Borough Councilman Charles Cornforth; Seymour Albert, a frequent defender of both town and gown on housing matters; Lewis Kraft, a housing developer; a local Republican district committeeman; a local Democratic district committeeman; two black townspeople, one young, one a civil rights leader for many years; two bright, articulate men undergraduates.

Across the Lake? Mr. Cornforth pronounced enthusiastically that the University had low middle-income housing for both students and residents across the canal in West Windsor in the parking field where Hospital Fete's are held.

Now you did that. You could turn back to the town the houses you've bought on streets like University Place. These could be middle-income houses for non-University people. The Borough, you see, is already built up; using the buildings we already have, is the best way to find more middle-income housing.

Mr. Moran smiled rather wilyly at this, and reminded Mr. Cornforth that the University has added a lot of faculty and student housing to the Princeton community already.

He said housing over in West Windsor wouldn't do much to integrate town and gown; the problem should be solved in the community itself.

How About the Future? Professor Bresler then expressed alarm at the whole idea.

"The University MUST keep some land for the future," he exclaimed. "Who, a generation ago, could have foreseen the need for a computer center?"

"You mean that for some unknown use, you're denying land for an URGENT use now?" Mr. Cornforth asked. "Besides it's such a large field, we don't want the whole thing!"

New Development. The University hopes to develop a kind of center in this area bounded by McCarter Theatre, the Princeton Inn dormitory, the present railroad station and a group of old warehouses on the Princeton Inn Place and Alexander Street.

"We've asked L. M. Pei, the planner, to create a 'community' here," Mr. Moran elaborated. "It might possibly have community housing for both students and non-students."

He said the University hoped to go before the new Borough Township joint Planning Board in April to talk about it.

"The University always wants to form a study committee instead of DOING something!" Mr. Cornforth exclaimed.

The University wants to create we don't want to contribute to a problem," Mr. Moran replied.

Student Take-Over? In this housing workshop, participants were disturbed because undergraduates are being allowed by the University to sleep out into town and live off campus. Mr. Moran confirmed that about 75 undergraduates are now living off-campus.

Mostly, it was argued, they move into low-income areas that may be the only places in town where black residents can get, or afford, an apartment or house.

Asked how far this trend might go, Mr. Moran observed, "The University would be in a rough dollar position with a thousand empty dormitory rooms."

He then assured Mr. Cornforth that he didn't mean to toss out the West Windsor idea, and he repeated that the University is studying ideas that might include community housing, but this doesn't necessarily mean we're going to do it.

New Ideas Needed. Mr. Albert described the Cambridge Development Corporation formed by Harvard and MIT, and a town-gown plan worked out in Syracuse, N. Y.

The University has a responsibility to evaluate this kind of thing," he said, "to examine what's being done and come back to the town with your findings."

Finances. "You're looking through the wrong end of the telescope," Mr. Moran stated. "The way New Jersey finances its local government is the problem."

The bulk of the people won't vote for tax increases to solve problems, he pointed out, suggesting that the most useful thing town and gown could do would be to develop a financial model for the state.

Low-income housing must be subsidized, he pointed out, but if middle-income housing is to be built in the free market, lo-

Milk or a Stew? The composition of the community was also discussed. Should Princeton deliberately try to make a mix of race, income, academic status? Some participants conferred whether homogeneous groups were better.

Mr. Alpert said heterogeneity is what makes Princeton, and he suggested the University could be responsible for changing the character of the town by allowing students to move into the black area, "which is disappearing."

Mr. Kraft stated finally that Princeton was already a "golden ghetto" with no houses under $40,000 and no houses under $20,000 for any kind of housing at all.

Workshop members spoke of the 200 units assigned by the Township Master Plan to middle-income housing. Miss Helen Fairbanks referred to this number scornfully as "peanuts" and Mr. Cornforth agreed.

Miss Fairbanks said the Township should eliminate two-acre zoning. "Half the vacant land in the Township could be used for something—it's a question of whether you want $75,000 homes and nothing else."

If people work here, Miss Fairbanks stated they should have the option of living here. And she added, "you give more to your town when you're a 24-hour citizen than when you just commute."

Joseph Dehner, undergraduate in the class of '70, remonstrated that "these discussions are almost divorcing the town and the campus. How can we ever get together?" He is a member of the Council of the University Community.

"Send your representatives to zoning and planning boards," suggested Mr. George Alexander. "We're more co-operative than it seems."

Both Mr. Moran and Mr. Alpert agreed that priorities were even more important than communication. Mr. Moran, who is involved with regional as well as University planning, warned, "In the next year, the bill game will be over in this region."

Summary. After the workshop had met, a round up session was held and summaries presented from each of the 15 Highlights:

● A floating ombudsman should be hired by the Council of Community Services to listen to complaints, respond to needs and "unleash resources."

● Many people of all ages desperately want to help in the drug problem but have no idea who to turn to, or how to help.

● Proposals to bus workers into Princeton from outlying parking lots—some on University land—are interesting to the University for further discussion.

● The town "must demand" that the University assure its experts to various problems, housing for example.

● The Civil Rights Commission should publicize more freely violations of the discrimination statutes.

"There are so many organizations and experts!" exclaimed William Cook, English teacher at Princeton High who made one of the summaries, at the end of the morning.

"We're in danger of the Committee Report Syndrome": if there's a report—the problem is solved!

HICKEL MEET
to Jadwin Gym Address. A is often the case in contemporary America. Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel came to the Princeton University campus Thursday and had the news made for him. A small but vociferous and establishment segment of the Jadwin Community audience chanted continuously during his 35-minute address, and taped broadcasts of the contentious atmosphere generated in Jadwin Gymnasium were heard next morning throughout the eastern seaboard.

At one point, President Goheen rose from his seat on the podium to break into a tirade against Mr. Hickel by informing the demonstrators that they were subject to disciplinary action. Despite photographic evidence taken by University professors, the expressions of opposition to President Nixon's administration continued unabated.

Some 75 undergraduate and graduate students, many of them wearing Indian paint and feathers to protest U.S. activity on the warpath, chanted a variety of slogans and occasional obscenities. As soon as Mr. Hickel stepped to the microphone to speak to some 2,000 persons as part of a two-day conference on "Race and Politics in America's Environmental Crisis," sounds of "nink, nink" were heard.

To make their thoughts clearer, the protesters chanted, "Today's pigs, tomorrow's bacon, Nixon and Hickel better start shaking." While President Goheen was promising disciplinary action, the chant changed almost inevitably to "Ho Ho Ho Chu Minh. NLF is going to win!"

Jibes about Mr. Hickel's career as governor of Alaska and about the oil that has disfigured the Santa Barbara area while he has been Secretary of the Interior were added to the almost continuous uproar over which he spoke. A rebuffed question-and-answer period at the end of his address was cancelled and replaced by apologies by President Goheen on behalf of the University to Mr. Hickel and the majority of the audience.

As a result of the protest, a score of students will be called before the University Council's Judicial Committee during the coming week. In addition, it is possible that civil action may be brought against those outside the University who took part in the protest.

GAS STATION ENTERED
Register Yields $7. The Phillips 66 Service Station at the corner of Bradford and Witherspoon Street was entered Sunday night by someone who forced a door open.

Manager Armand Robinson called police Monday to report that $7 in change was missing from a cash register. P.D. Robert Mucciarelli investigated.

TOPICS Of The Town

"YES" TO BUDGET

"No" To Water. Borough Council passed the 1970 budget Tuesday night after a public hearing in which mayor and Council were lectured on inflation and the evils of excessive government spending by Mark Jones, Library Place. Mayor Robert W. Cavley reminded Mr. Jones that Council had deliberately held the municipal tax rate "almost static" for several years despite inflation, because the schools faced unavoidable tax increases in those years. "We're now catching up," Mayor Cavley explained, "and we're following a pay as you go policy to avoid high interest rates."

Councilman Charles Cornforth, chairman of finance, suggested that a community's standards help set its tax rates, and he cited the Prince-

DEDICATION SET: Princeton University's new $17.2 million mathematics-physics-statistics complex, completed after nearly four years of construction, will be dedicated on Tuesday. Building at left, Henry Burchard Fine Hall, houses departments of Mathematics and Statistics. Building at right, Stanley Palmer Jadwin Hall, houses department of Physics. Fine Hall Library, with a capacity of 80,000 volumes, is located under central plaza, and connects two buildings. Rectangular structure at lower right houses 50-million electron-volt cyclotron. ton schools' small class size—23 pupils—as a symbol of these standards. "No citizen ever told us to keep Borough employees' salaries equal to those of municipal employees elsewhere," Mr. Cornworth continued, "but we felt that's what Princeton would want, hence the salary increases."

Down the Drain Council passed, 3-1, a resolution opposing the rate increase request of the Princeton Water Company. The dissenter was Councilman Alice Malt who said she felt that service had been "excellent" and that "some increase" was justified.

Princeton Water Company representatives met last Thursday with Council and Township Committee to state their case. Mr. Cornforth reported that the company has acquired 666 new customers—few of them in the Borough—since it became affiliated with the Elizabethtown Water Company in 1952, and has spent $1,610 per customer to lay new mains compared to $200 per new customer before. The last rate increase was in 1965. Councilman Fred Peters remarked that Elizabethtown has 30% of its earnings available to common stockholders.

The proposed new rate increase makes Princeton "significantly higher" than the 11 other towns served by Elizabethtown. "And we left Borough and Township were something being singled out," Mr. Cornforth said.

The company was scheduled to make its case this Wednesday before the Public Utilities Commission in Trenton. Mayor Cavley urged private citizens to present their views at subsequent hearings. The rate increase must be approved by the PUC before it can take effect.

Council learned that Public Service is also requesting a rate increase in this section of New Jersey. That hearing date hasn't been set.

Snow Job. Council plans to spend $28,575 for street-sweeping, two new snowplows, a dump truck, a panel truck and a new sewer section for Olden Lane. All the rolling stock represents replacements. Olden is going to be bonded originally, but Council decided to pay cash.

A resolution was passed providing for reconstruction of Cleveland Lane this spring.

The new salary ordinance was introduced and public hearing scheduled for the April meeting. The Borough is still working from the salary scale developed professionally around 1963. The current version doesn't include major department heads, whose salaries are above those on the scale.

Opposes Private Force. Councilman Robert Hendry stated his opposition to pending state legislation which would allow institutions of higher education to have their own private police force.

Mr. Hendry said the proposed law usurps local police prerogatives and would create a "self-interest protection" with allegiance to the institution—Princeton University, for example.

Citing court rulings that municipalities are responsible for damage in street riots, he sug-

Parking at "Morven"

To relieve downtown parking, Borough Councilman Charles Cornforth suggested Tuesday night that Council ask the state for the use of blacktop behind "Morven" that holds about 100 cars.

Mr. Cornforth suggested that the Borough might sell all-day parking with a windshield sticker system. People who parked all day in the "Morven" lot would free about 100 parking spaces downtown, which could then be devoted to high-turnover meters, he said.

"Morven" was used as the governor's mansion until the advent of Governor William Cahill, who has said that he probably won't be living there.

Asked if the new law were passed the University might be liable for the acts of SDS members.

Borough and University lawyers and officials have already met in conference on the law and will again, Mr. Hendry said.

The public library, several spokesmen told Council, hopes some of the new parking space next to the library, recently purchased from Public Service, can be half-hour stalls for quick visits to the library.

FOUR YEARS LATER

Math-Physics Complex Ready. A dedication ceremony and open house next Tuesday afternoon will mark the formal opening of Princeton University's new mathematics-physics-statistics complex.

In addition, the three academic departments housed in the new complex are scheduling special programs of scientific and historical interest surrounding the ceremony. All are open to the public.

The $17.2 million complex located next to Palmer Memorial Stadium on Washington Road, has been under construction since early 1966. It includes a six-level sciences building known as Stanley Palmer Jadwin Hall; a mathematics and statistics building, Henry Burchard Fine Hall; a mathematics-physics-statistics library which connects the two structures; and a cyclotron facility attached to Jadwin Hall.

Tuesday's dedication ceremony will begin at 1 in Jadwin Gymnasium, a short dis-

More Flowers
To More People
More Often

... A word about our
$1.00 Flower Specials.

It is the nature of the flower business to experience periods of peak production, coupled with slow demand. At such times, growers are faced with the prospect of having their crop of flowers dumped, since selling them in huge quantities below production costs. In doing the latter a grower can at least receive some monetary return for his efforts and makes the best of a bad business situation. It is this volume buying at distress prices that makes our $1.00 flowers possible. We are cooperating in a national effort to move more flowers to more people, more often.

Through our $1.00 week-end flower specials, flower lovers have a unique opportunity to enjoy flowers at nominal cost. You actually get flowers for less than the cost to produce them.

To furnish flowers at these bargain rates must necessarily be a bare bones operation. It is for that reason we do not include greens, will not box, arrange or deliver them. Please do not ask us to do so. They are cash of course.

So popular have our specials become that in one recent weekend, we distributed over 2000 units. With such favorable customer response we are encouraged to work even harder at securing flower bargains for you. We now regularly receive fresh flowers from overnight from the vast flower plantations in Florida, California and more recently Bogota, Columbia. Our regular stock also reflects the international nature of our product. Mimosas from France, Cymbidiums from Australia, Proteas from South Africa.

This is really just to thank you for your support in helping us become a leader in floral merchandising. Hopefully you will have a better understanding of why we sometimes have a tremendous selection to choose from — and at other times a limited choice. In any event, remember we always have something in stock. Fresh flowers for the $1.00 every weekend of the year.

Give someone you love flowers this weekend.

tance from the new complex featured speaker will be Emilio Q. Daddario, U.S. Representative from Connecticut. First Congressional District Rep. Daddario, chairman of the House Subcommittee on Science, Research and Development, is expected to talk on the future of technological development in the United States.

Princeton President Robert F. Goheen and Dr. Frederick Seitz, President of The Rockefeller University, will also speak at the dedication. Dr. Seitz, a former president of the National Academy of Sciences, holds a Princeton Ph.D. in physics and is an alumni trustee of the University.

Following the dedication, the complex will be open to the public. The Department of Physics will also exhibit research and teaching apparatus once used by famed physicist Joseph Henry, a member of the Princeton faculty from 1832 to 1848, a founder and president (1849) of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the leading American scientist of his day.

Refreshments will be served at several locations throughout the complex at 3:00 p.m. On Tuesday morning, the Department of Mathematics will sponsor a lecture of more general interest, "Thirty Years of the Old Fine Hall," the former home of Princeton Mathematics. To be held in the Woodrow Wilson School Auditorium at 9:30 a.m., the program will include remarks by Dr. Solomon Bochner and Dr. Solomon Lefschetz, both of whom are Henry Burchard Fine Professors of Mathematics, Emeritus, at Princeton; and by Mrs. Agnes E. Henry, assistant to the Chairman of the Department of Mathematics.

The Department of Physics also sponsor two talks of general interest on Tuesday: a 10:40 a.m. presentation in McCosh Hall entitled, "Sixty Years of Palmer Physical Laboratory (the old Physics Laboratory)" by Dr. Edgar G. Shenstone, Princeton's Class of 1909 Professor of Physics, Emeritus; and a 4:30 p.m. lecture in Alexander Hall entitled, "The Future of Physics," by Freeman J. Dyson, a member of the Institute for Advanced Study.

FIRE REPORT

From School Officials. A check-list of ways to cope with future school fires was spelled out Monday at a press conference called by officials of the Princeton Regional School system.

Fire procedures are being refined as a result of the Princeton High School fire on Thursday, February 5, and subsequent public questions about safety and procedure.

Dr. Henry Powsner, who was elected to the school board on Feb. 2 by two days before the fire, conducted the press session. Highlights:

- Take monthly fire drills will continue to be held. At drills, an actual check-list will be followed, to include such items as "Did Borough Hall hear the all-clear?" "Did anyone pass a hall alarm bell that wasn't ringing?" People could be asked to listen for individual alarm bells in halls.
- Drills may include practice in following alternate routes inside the building. If, during a drill, a line of students passes a sign reading "This is location of fire," the line would make a detour a long a pre-arranged alternate route to the outside.

• One person in the building must be completely familiar with the alarm system and its complexities, is a necessity.

school officials feel. At Princeton High, J. Alfred Seitz, assistant principal and former teacher of industrial arts, has been assigned to this position.

• In each of the other schools, a similar key person will be appointed, Dr. Powsner said.

• Inspection by firemen should occur more frequently than the once-a-year schedule that has been followed for years.

Spot checks of the fire-alarm system might be made. Dr. Powsner believes it is "too much to ask of a volunteer fire department" to make elaborate inspections of the fire protection system. One part of the example, has 600 in dividend heat detectors.

"Response Was Good"

"The response of the high school to the fire was good," Dr. Powsner declared, "kids were evacuated promptly, nobody was hurt, property damage was minimal. We learned a lot: our errors, for the most part, are now corrected, others are being worked on with the cooperation of the fire department and Chief (William) Hussey."

Dr. Powsner described the technical workings of the Princeton High School alarm system and its hook-up with Borough Hall, in great detail, leaving the impression that the whole system may be too refined and sophisticated for its own good.

Yet is can malfunction in the simplest, household kind of way. For example, a signal light bulb in Borough Hall was burned out but a ringing "trouble" bell in Borough Hall was loud and audible; a battery-operated alarm system in the high school basement, had a dead battery. But that system was only designed to trigger a warning bell if the power should fail.

As of today, the system is functioning, except for one series of bells which doesn't ring. The school's electrician, John P. Servis, is still trying to trace this circuit. Dr. Powsner said and workmen may have triggered this Monday's false alarm. He said this particular circuit was added to the basic system in 1967.

Replying to specific "observations" on the February fire made by Chief Hussey in a letter to Dr. Pugh E. McPherson, superintendent of schools. Dr. Downer said:

... Several students reported that alarms didn't ring at though fire-boxes were pulled. In tests one and two days after the fire, there were no hand-pulled boxes that didn't work. There was no area of the school on the day of the fire, where alarm bells were not ringing. That one circuit, mentioned above, was indeed silent. Dr. Powsner says Chief Hussey is now satisfied on this point.

• Chief Hussey suggested that Mr. Seitz confused the situation by mentioning building evacuation over the public address system. Dr. Powsner replied Mr. Seitz: "It was very relevant judgment: the alarms were ringing, and his voice on the PA system told students this was the real thing, not just a drill."

• Some students were led out through a smoke-clogged exit. True, Dr. Powsner says, but it was a way of getting students outside quickly. To have turned back would have been foolish because nobody knew where or how bad the fire was. Other students, elsewhere in the building, were de-toured.

• There was little control of students once they were out. True, says Dr. Powsner, but there is no good control system with high-school-age students. Roll-call is meaningless.

• Many students had already left for the day.

Dr. Powsner thinks it's more important for teachers outside the building to check and make sure students have gotten out.

• A window on the floor over the fire wouldn't open. True, it has been permanently sealed shut because it's hush over a concrete pavement and students had been perching on the window-sill. Dr. Powsner suggests that it's better to protect students' everyday safety by leaving the window sealed, and let firemen break it if they have to.

Dr. Powsner says: the window is directly above the most accessible spot for a fire-truck.

• The parking lot was overcrowded. True, there is no question about it, a gripe, not Dr. McPherson. How, problem, say both Dr. Powsner, police cannot patrol the high school grounds without passage of a special ordinance. This is now being prepared.

Dr. McPherson said: "Fire-alarms in the high school had been turned off on two days in December. True. There had been so many false alarms that Acting Principal Lawrence Burke decided to turn the system off, saying a bell at the Borough Hall police desk."

"Miss Burke believed that a stern lecture to the kids about false alarms, plus a cooling-off period when alarms weren't working, would be the best solution."

working, might help solve the problem," Dr. Povner says, adding that Chief Hussey does not agree with Miss Burke's action.

• William Brooks, credited with discovering the fire, was criticized for running past pull boxes to call police from the high school office. Dr. Povner explains that he was running to call police on the hotline, to tell them it wasn't another false alarm.

Dr. Povner said that the company that installed the fire detection system doesn't feel responsible for its mainline lines. The school board is now looking for an electrical contractor who is an expert in all kinds of fire alarm systems.

STUDENTS SPEAK

On Fire, Princeton High's Student Council, in a resolution of thanks to everyone who helped during the fire, asked that Chief Hussey be invited to inspect the building and make recommendations which school officials would implement.

They suggested that: various members of faculty and student body be trained in the use of fire fighting apparatus; all areas required for emergency vehicles be kept clear; fire drills be held frequently; the fire system be kept "operational"; an assembly on fire prevention be held during school hours.

THREE ARE JAILED

For Post Office Theft, Township police have charged two Princeton residents and a 17-year-old Borough juvenile in connection with the robbery February 28 at the U.S. Postal station in the Princeton Shopping Center.

Clement Jackson, 21, 2714 Leigh Avenue, has been arrested by Detective Samuel Bianco with breaking and entering, larceny and possession of stolen property, also charged with breaking and entering and larceny are Douglas Griggs, 20, 148 Bernier Court, and the juvenile.

All are presently in Mercer County Jail in default of bail, awaiting an arraignment scheduled for March 18. Bail for Jackson was set at $6,250 and $2,000 for Griggs by Judge Burton Peskin.

The arrests were the result of a combined investigation conducted by Detectives Norman Servis, Anthony Pinelli and Bianco of the Township and U.S. postal inspectors. Federal charges are pending, Detective Bianco said.

Armed with a search warrant, police went to Jackson's home and found 819 of 882 money orders that had been stolen from the postal station, a money order validating machine "just about all" of the $2,996 in stamps that had been stolen. A 375 pound safe that had been carried away in the theft was found broken open behind Forer's Pharmacy on Witherspoon Street by Detective Servis and Detective Robert McAvonia of the Borough police. The search warrants for Griggs' home was carried out by Det. McAvonia.

The juvenile and William G. Marshall, 20, of Clay Street, were apprehended in Trenton a week after the break-in, trying to cash money orders that had been stolen in the postal theft here. Marshall was arrested in a men's store on Broad Street by Trenton police. Five more of the stolen money orders were found in Marshall's overcoat pocket.

According to police, Marshall admitted he knew they were stolen. He told police that he had obtained them from a relative of his in Princeton.

Marshall was charged with possession of stolen property and attempting to cash worthless money orders. He was held for grand jury action under $5,000 bail.

As police were questioning Marshall, the juvenile entered the same clothing store and attempted to cash a money order from the same stolen series.

SHEEHAN WINS

Cao Build Offices, Timothy J. Sheehan can go ahead with the office building he has started on the corner of Nassau and Markham.

The three judges of the Appellate Division of Superior Court ruled unanimously this week that the Borough has to give back to Mr. Sheehan the building permit that was cancelled in the fall of 1968.

Because the decision was unanimous, the Borough has no inherent right of appeal to the State Supreme Court, Borough attorney Gordon Griffin says the legal issue involved isn't important enough for a special request that the Supreme Court consider the case.

Mr. Sheehan's permit was cancelled under a clause in the new (1968) Borough zoning law which wiped out existing permits unless construction was substantially under way by the publication date of the new ordinance.

What the Borough hoped to do, was preserve the light house which wared out existing permits unless construction was substantially under way by the publication date of the new ordinance.

Mr. Sheehan began to build anyway, and Judge Frank Knappfield of Superior Court ruled last June that he was entitled to have his permit back because he'd gone ahead with excavation work under the permit. It was this ruling that was upheld by the Appellate judges.

However, the Appellate Court in this week's decision warned Mr. Sheehan about the height. —Continued On Page 11

News Of The THEATRES

BIG SOUND . . .

From Big Band. A big band — "big" defined as 16-piece — will play Alexander Hall this Friday (8:30 p.m.) as McCarter Theatre's "Spring Rock Special."

It's The Prospective Sound, founded three years ago by Senior Bill Hershey when he was Freshman Bill Hershey. He musicians come, now as they did then, from the Princeton University Orchestra, the University's Concert Band, Triangle Club and various soloists from the music department.

It's the largest student-organized band, Mr. Hershey says, and it gives instrumentalists a chance to work together just for fun — or for their "musical edification" — while entertaining dancers and listeners at the same time.

The Prospective Sound dips into the repertoire of the long-ago Swing era, the jazz of the late 1940s and the big-band rock hits of the 60's decade. The "Sound" believes that "this wide spectrum of musical styles pleases audiences of all ages . . . the language of music from different eras helps bridge the gap between the age-groups of those ears."

Friday's concert will be taped by the H.H. Haggers Recording Company of Princeton and the tapes will re-appear as an album of the concert.

NEW WORK ON PROGRAM

Of Alvin Ailey. A new work, and a highly-acclaimed favorite, will both be on the program when Alvin Ailey comes to McCarter with his American Dance Theatre this Sunday at 8 p.m.

Tickets are on sale at the box-office. This is the third event in the annual Dance Series sponsored jointly by McCarter and the Princeton Ballet Society.

The new work is Ailey's "Masakela Language," based on the music of the South African trumpeter Hugh Masekela, and danced in ornereine last fall in New York.

Ailey's most famous work, "Revelations," which emulates Negro Spirituals, will also be on the program. The afternoon will open with Joyce Trisler's "Dance for Six," set to music of Vivaldi.

A Low Bow to "The Mikado"

A simple, splendid evening inaugurated what one hopes will be a long list of productions by the Gilbert and Sullivan Association at the handsome Allan P. Kirby Arts Center of Lawrenceville School on March 1. The superbly staged production of "The Mikado," or the Town of Tilpoo, was full of perfect fidelity, innuendo and silliness. In other words, it was precisely what we need to see more often.

Who doesn't know the story or the music? A returning lover, a bumbling executioner, a pompous minister of state, a lovely Japanese schoolgirl. Music like this: "I've Got a Little List," "A Wandering Minstrel I," "Titi-Wallows," and "My object all sublime, I shall achieve in time . . . to let the punishment fit the crime, the punishment fit the crime." Oh, ya-tum-tadad-tum-tadum . . . A totally infectious, frothy tune, a hearty ending, profuse applause.

And applause is precisely right for all involved, chiefly for the absurd and pigeon-toed, snickersnare-carrying Ko-Ko, played with aplomb and arid mastery by Lee H. Bristol Jr. Mr. Bristol's pained tones and distracted, pouty, somnolent grimaces rigidly dominated the evening.

He was matched by Thomas Van Vranken, the staid and pompous Pooch-Bah-Lord High You Name It, a man "born sneering" in a jovial and should set a high standard for a lone and productive life.

"A Real Menace." The lovers, played with appropriate insipidity by John McCarter and Siaran Dundore, provided fairly straight roles by which the more crooked characters gained prominence, and they sang well. Diane Curry, as Katisha, was a real menace, which is to say she was clearly excellent; with Mr. Bristol and Mr. Van Vranken, Miss Curry was one of the most successful role-creators (and I think this is the challenge of Gilbert and Sullivan) of the evening. George H. Gallup, Jr. and Paul Brown, Jr. supported the entire show well. Mr. Gallup, the Mikado, evaded just the right kind of awkward mercilessly condemning without being bad-natured about it.

Ah, but they all were fine, all of them: the chorus of noble gentlemen of Japan, the little chorus of school-girls trotting about on their tiny feet, the superb orchestra directed by David Agler, the line staging by Munroe Wade, and the stunningly simple sets by Hunter Ness.

It was indeed a good time.

Gilbert and Sullivan productions have always struck me as the sorts of shows I would like to be in, had I only a modicum of talent. Alas, I am no Savoyard. But my notion to sing night-lyrics can be nobly undone if the Gilbert and Sullivan Society continues what it has so successfully and professionally begun, for this production was eminently enjoyable and should set a high standard for a lone and productive life.

"No Strings" Package of Talent

If you missed "No Strings" last weekend at Princeton High, you missed a fresh and happy evening full of young talent.

The Richard Rodgers musical served chiefly to show off two PHS assets: Linda Lockhart, and the PHS stage hand under Jack Horner. Miss Lockhart is a slim, verve, lovely young girl who has a voice of astonishing professionalism, considering her youth. And the instrumentalists played the Rodgers score with the skill and aplomb of a Broadway pit band.

You'll remember "No Strings" — a musical with no particular plot, which had a part written especially for Diahann Carroll. Miss Lockhart plays this role, that of a Harlem-born girl who is now the highest-paid model in Paris. There's a footloose young American writer (Dan Schay) who wrote a Pulitzer prize book some years back, but can't seem to get started again, etc.

Miss Lockhart's voice is versatile enough to put across a relatively quiet song like "The Sweetest Sounds" or a belt-outter like "You Don't Tell Me." She is at ease when she sings (even on an opening night), and she's got the potential to do quite a bit with her voice.

Mr. Schay has a pleasing voice and manner, too, but doesn't seem quite so sure of himself vocally as Miss Lockhart. In this "No Strings" production, which has to cope with the unappealing acoustics of the PHS auditorium, Director Don Evans has shrewdly cast a couple of PHS students as make girls. Dressed in mini-skirts and jerseys, they stand quietly at the sides between numbers, coming forward to hand a mike to anybody about to sing. Works fine.

A girl who's the highest-paid model in Paris gets to wear clothes. And of course she has friends who wear clothes, too. The program says that Miss Lockhart's clothes were designed by Estelle Brown, but whether she did all the rest, we aren't sure.

All we can say is, she has an eye for color and line: a brown wet vinyl maxi . . . a yellow gold satin culottes . . . a special chiffon gown of flame, cocoa and cream. All are extravagantly becoming to Miss Lockhart.

Other women in the cast are equally lucky. In the wardrobe department, although they may not get to change clothes quite so often.

Mr. Evans, the director, likes to mix students and faculty in his productions, and in "No Strings" he has Joyce Hamilton, a kindergarten teacher at Little Brook, as Mollie, the girl whom Vogue's Robert Argeth, PHS chemistry teacher who heats up a French accent on the Bunsen burner to play Louis ("that lecherous old man . . ."). And who should appear in a cameo chum but Frank Soda, Dean of the Faculty, passing unobtrusively among the guests as a waiter. Superb performance.

Mr. Soda, who has a certain acquaintance with languages, may have been responsible for the delightful French that came out of Jim Perkins as Luc, and Marthe Rowen as Jeannette.

Jennie Clark is nicely cast as Comfort, the horsey babe from Oklahoma with a bankroll wide as the prairie.

Sets leave the stage as bare as possible, the lighting fixtures serving as a reminder that models work in a photographer's studio. Ted Woods, formerly resident designer at Rider brings stagehands out to hook panels from a rod when he wants to take us to the streets of Paris or to a Riviera party.

The exuberant dancing, directed by Carol Winburn, symbolizes the talent, verve and snap of this youthful company.

ACTORS COMING

From Intercollegiate Company: The Irons, a new intercollegiate touring company, will play Murray Theatre this Saturday, offering Brecht's "A Man's A Man" at a 2:30 matinee and 8:30 evening performance.

Theatre Intime and Woodrow Wilson College are jointly sponsoring The Irons' appearance.

The cast includes actors from Wellesley, Harvard, Yale and Emerson, among others, and the Princeton stop is part of a tour that has visited Wellesley, Harvard and Yale campuses.

Tickets, at $1.50 for the matinee and $2 for the evening, may be reserved by calling Theatre Intime, 452-8181.

Theatrons is using Eric Bentley's adaptation of Brecht's German script, and music written by Bradley M. Burg (Princeton, '65) for the production given in Princeton in 1965.

"We chose 'A Man's A Man' for our opening production," says Michael Zeilik, executive producer (Princeton, '65) because it is by an established playwright, is entertaining for both audience and cast and involves theatre, song, dance music and simple sets and lighting, integrated and balanced.

The set, by the way, consists of inflatable plastic bubbles held up by a continuous stream of air provided by ordinary electric fans.

INTRODUCING "THE ARTISAN" and its owner-director, Mrs. Shirley Claman, at Sunday afternoon's preview of Princeton's newest gallery, located at 30 Witherspoon Street.

IT'S NEW To Us

SEE THE ECLIPSE

At The Artisan, if you missed the eclipse of the sun on Saturday, you can see it in wood at The Artisan, a new shop that opened this week at 30 Witherspoon Street, next to King's Court. Ike Herman Holzman's free-form sculpture that takes advantage of some tones of black walnut and a tantalizing inter-play of light.

The Artisan is an outpouring of Shirley Claman's involvement in art. A watercolorist herself, Mrs. Claman has gathered together the allied arts — pottery, weaving, stichery, handcrafted jewelry and blended them with a gallery of paintings, graphics and sculpture in a most comfortable way.

"I'm trying to accomplish a showing of the crafts as well as paintings and graphics," Mrs. Claman said at Sunday's preview. "I feel the combination adds interest — one enhances the other —."

The Artisan has great simplicity — neutral walls, a blue-green rug and a touch of wood paneling. And all around the walls you will see the work of artists who share Mrs. Claman's obvious and joyous love of clear, clean color.

There's Janet Simley's abstract — a tone poem in the red spectrum, flecked with white and with black. And a pensive series in blue signed "Ella V." (Velkovsky), who is a sculptor as well as a painter.

Pottery pieces by Nadine Weson have a high-fired glaze, often given a matte finish that is gentle to the eye. And Bernice Falso is represented by a tranquil study of golden fruit overflowing a supermarket container. It is a small oil painting, filled with warmth.

Since we're all inclined to be somewhat envious of the publicists of the major city galleries, you have a pleasurable insight into the number of highly gifted painters who live and work in this area when you realize that Janet Simley is a Belle Mead resident, as is Mrs. Claman; Bernice Falso is from Somerville, and "Ella V." from Princeton.

Also from Princeton, and represented at the Artisan, are Margaret Kennard Johnson of Snowden Lane and her daughter Lonnie Sue. Mrs. Johnson, a former student of Josef Albers, has moved away to a marvelous love affair with color and textures. You will see several very different aspects of her work. Her daughter, a 1969 graduate of Princeton High School, is now a sophomore at the University of Michigan.

Helen S. Rose, known for her weavings and botanics, is represented by a wall hanging in silks and stichery; a most imposing hooked rug design titled "Winter Sun" in blues and greens focused on a subdued gleam of yellow, and by a delightful oil painting of a girl in warm reds and oranges.

The Artisan manages to display a great deal of art work without seeming crowded. We saw paintings by E. Little, a Canadian transplanted to Princeton Junction; Gerald Laing, a graduate of both Sandhurst and St. Martin's School of Art in London; Mary Lee Johnston of Belle Mead; Ruth Sharon, Biff Heine, a basically self-taught artist; Enrique Castro-Cid.

Nonnie Barnes of Philadelphia is represented by several ceramics pieces. There is also the fluid sculpture of Hamilton Reed Armstrong. And the jewelry that Mrs. Claman has chosen to exhibit is by Arthur and Paula Nagy — panned links for your wrist, or a shield-shaped pin — or a slim, brave swoop of silver for your ears.

The Artisan is open Mondays through Saturdays from 10 to 5:30. The prices are moderate, in the main, and it is quite likely that you may find here the painting or sculpture or a hand-crafted piece that will delight you every time you look at it.

Saturday, March 19 at 11 a.m. at Princeton Day School, The Great Room.

The theme this year is "Traditions of East and West," with Mrs. E. McClung Fleming, a ceramics specialist at the Winterthur Museum speaking on "The China Trade and the Young American Nation" on Friday, March 20, at 11 a.m.

"Carpets from the Near East" will be discussed by Richard Ellinghausen of the Institute for Advanced Study and consultative chairman of the Metropolitan Museum's department of Islamic art. A Princeton resident, Dr. Ellinghausen is widely known as an authority on the ceramics and miniature painting of the Near East as well as on carpets from the Near East. He will speak on Friday, March 20, at 8:15 p.m.

Larry Benzec of Kale's Nursery has designed a Japanese garden for the center exhibit. The two part display consists of a mound garden with a small path leading to a gate, and the terrace beyond. Hours of the antique show are noon until 10 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, and noon until 5 on the closing day.

The Princeton Antiques Show has come to serve — in a most delightful way — two purposes: an opportunity to buy or browse among antiques brought from other areas by distinguished dealers, as well as contributing to the development of Wellesley College and to the May Margaret Fine School Scholarship Fund. Since the initial show in 1968 more than $36,000 has been sent to the College.

Mrs. Walter G. Gibson and Mrs. Gordon R. Manger, the general chairmen, and their committee have assembled 30 antiques exhibits by dealers from the New England and Middle Atlantic States, many of whom are returning for the sixth and seventh times.

ton will include among her pieces a Heppelwhite mahogany card table with a bell-flower inlay, made in Salem, Mass., in 1790 — and a pair of Chinese octagonal garden seats in 18th Century porcelain. Laura Reinhard of Washington, D.C., a new exhibitor this year, is a specialist in old prints and maps. Her exhibit will include some rare sea charts that show the routes from Europe to the New World, dating from the late 17th Century. Some are illustrated with ships and sea monsters.

Hobart House of Haddam, Conn., will bring two groups of American serving spoons with the theme of the show on them: the basket of flowers used by silversmiths and furniture makers in the early 19th Century. The Stockens of Windham, Conn., specialists in American 18th and early 19th Century furniture, will also offer an assortment of oriental porcelain, pictures and wood carvings as well as a small hutch cupboard and a set of fan-back Windsor sidechairs in the original paints.

Other dealers will bring the largest variety of antiques presented in the history of the show, ranging from the Deolger's Antiques of Shrewsbury Louis XV marquetry desk, Bernard Booke's interior design, David Clark's French provincial grandfather's clock, to Craig Miller's enormous variety of pieces including Sheraton, Chippendale and Queen Anne furniture.

A lunch of hot soup, assorted sandwiches and homemade pastries will be served from noon until 2:30. Tea and snacks will be available until 3:30. Admission to the show is $2; or $1.50 if you send a check in advance to The Wellesley Club of Central New Jersey, 7 Van Kirk Road, Princeton.

1900'S AND RAGTIME
"Turn of the Century," Max Morath's new main show, this evening at the Turn of the Century" will play McCarter on a one-night stand Monday, March 30 at 8:30. Tickets are now on sale.
Morath's off Broadway show was one of last season's hits. He's been on Johnny Carson, Merv Griffin, the Kraft Music Hall and Today, and is regarded as the country's top expert on ragtime and the urban folk music of the "turn of the century."
"The Evening" is not really nostalgic, critics say. One observed that "he gives us adroit showmanship and music which is qualified to stand up without sentimental crutches. He makes the generation gap seem little more than a puddle jump."

"BELLE DE JOUR"
Tuesday, Lais Bumele's 1968 film "Belle de Jour" will be shown at McCarter next Tuesday at 8 p.m. as part of the International Film Series.
Catherine Deneuve stars as the neurotic wife who can only feel worthy of her husband's love through her own degradation, and slips out of the house every afternoon to serve as a prostitute in the friendly neighborhood brothel.

SCOUTS SPONSOR "TIGER"

FUNNY GIRL, starring Barbara Streisand, moves from the Playhouse to the Garden Theatre this week.

Children's Theater.
Tickets, at 50c for children and 75c for adults, are available from members of Troop 25 or at the door. The performance will be at 7:30, and the church is located at Parkway Parkside Avenues in Trenton.

GARDEN
Funny Girl (now playing): The story of Fanny Brice and gambler-confidence man Nick Arnstein provides the framework for "Funny Girl," but the film's raison d'être is as a vehicle for the exploitation of Barbara Streisand's considerable talents.
The film is color and costume keyed so that the eye is always focused on Barbara. It is the measure of her artistry that she is able to hold center stage for over 2 1/2 hours and keep the audience hanging on every note and every line.
Omair Sharif, miscast in his role as the gambler with a Park Avenue Jewish background, has a talent for making the love scenes turn out a bit sticky. Miss Streisand always seems to react to Sharif with a rising inflection.

PLAYHOUSE AND PRINCE
Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here (now playing) is a beautifully fashioned, complex drama that will particularly appeal to young adults.
The director and writer of the screen story (based on Harry Lawton's book, "Willie Boy"), Abraham Polonsky, who was blacklisted in the McCarthy era and has not worked in films under his own name since 1949 with the exception of the script for "Madigan," His only previous directing stint was "Force of Evil," a John Garfield starrer which is highly esteemed by film buffs.

A western in locale and character types only, "Willie Boy" tells the story of two pairs of ill-starred lovers — the Indian couple who are victims of hostility against their race, and the white pair who represent different and antagonistic levels of society. The film is peppered with a dry wit.

Characterizations are wonderfully drawn — Robert Redford gives a beautiful, understated portrayal of sheriff Cooper, who personifies the strong, silent western man of action. Robert Blake's performance as Willie Boy is memorable for the intensity with which he cosplays the vanishing of his race by the white man. Susan Clark is splendid as the lady doctor from Boston who enjoys to the hilt her masculine role as superintendent of the Indian reservation. Katherine Ross breathes life and vigor into the relatively minor role of the Indian girl, Lela.

Basically, the film deals with the ambivalence, inequities, and primitivism inherent in the American culture. Photographed in softly muted colors which suddenly sharpened at the moment of confrontation between Indian and sheriff, the film has beautiful shots of the western landscape. With no objectionable sex scenes, and a minimum of violence, Willie Boy should appeal to all levels of the concrete slab he has already laid over the parking garages that underlie his building.

The Borough claims this height violation is old and no zoning ordinances and the court warns that the Borough's building is in jeopardy (Bernard Glover) made Jerry M. Sheehan an occupancy permit for the office building. Mr. Sheehan battles, says the court, "at his peril."

The court decided this slab lease required expert testimony and would be better heard as a separate issue. So Mr. Sheehan and the Borough may be back in court again.

In a related matter, Mr. Sheehan is scheduled to meet the Borough in another kind of court action. Donald Harney, Borough engineer has filed a complaint against Mr. Sheehan charging failure to construct temporary sidewalks around the building site.

That case will be heard next Wednesday, March 16, before Borough Magistrate Theodore T. Thorne. It was originally set for February 18, but Mr. Sheehan asked for, and was granted, a delay.

HOSPITAL PARKING?
Overall Plan Asked, Princeton Hospital has been told by the Joint Planning Board to present an overall parking plan instead of a plan that dribbles in, drop by drop.

The request was made at the board's March meeting after the hospital submitted a sketch for about a dozen parking places near the corner of Henry and Witherspoon. That sketch was rejected. It hadn't been prepared in accordance with the Township's site plan ordinance — no buildings were shown, for example, and the applicant's name had been omitted — and the board felt that it was merely a piece of the over-all picture.

No one appeared before the board to represent the hospital, apparently because of misunderstanding about close scheduling. The site plan review board had met only a few days before and the hospital hadn't been told that the plan would come before the full planning board.

Future site plan meetings will be scheduled far enough ahead of the regular planning board meeting so that applicants can be informed.

In other business, the board approved site plan recommendations for the new Bucci office building on Route 206 south of Nini Plimouth. Mr. Bucci has agreed to widen part of 206 and to install curbs. The building will have a single exit entrance on 206.

YWCA SUES STATE
On Abortion Laws, Princeton's YWCA filed suit in Federal Court, Newark, last Thursday, in a challenge to the constitutionality of New Jersey's abortion laws.

The YWCA was one of two organizations — the other is the state chapter of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom — who joined with 11 individuals in the suit. Most of the individual plaintiffs are gynecologists, obstetricians or pediatricians.

Action by the Princeton YWCA followed a unanimous "yes" vote by the organization's 30-member board of directors. The action was recommended by the Y's Abortion Law Reform Committee, whose chairman is Mrs. Eugene Krasnoff, 210 Hamilton Avenue.

Other members of the group's steering committee are Mrs. Fred B. Smith, Mrs. Jack Ward, Mrs. Robert Bergman, Mrs. Anthony Debe and Mrs. William Selden.

The suit was a prelude to the introduction last Monday of the abortion bill, which is sponsored by Assemblyman William M. Crone, Bergen County Republican.

Civic Association Founded in Princeton Junction

The founding of the Princeton Junction Neighborhood Association was announced this week after an initial enrollment drive netted 200 memberships within seven days. The P.J.N.A. is designed to "provide an efficient means of communication among people of the area and to give them an effective voice in matters of common concern."

Individual directors of the P.J.N.A. represent the several logical concentrations of population in the Princeton Junction community. Each representative will help transmit information on vital matters to residents in his area, and will in turn become alert to the residents' views and comments as they become better informed and more involved in current and future decisions.

Five officers have been elected by the board of directors to serve until March 1971. Newton E. Godrick, president; Arthur Kahn, vice-president; Theodore Linn, corresponding secretary; Walter Brown, recording secretary; and Mrs. Marion Kullback, treasurer. The other eight directors are Mrs. Alameda Brickett, James Davis, David Sinsler, Lee Taghafferi, Robert Touchberry, Joseph Wassilow, William Watt and Lloyd Wertz.

A citizens advisory committee is also being formed. Anyone seeking more information may address inquiries to P.J.N.A., Box 93, Princeton Junction, N.J. 08550.

Bradford, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Bradford of Montclair, to Mary E. Bradford of Princeton, N.J. February 28. Anglican Church of Most Holy Trinity, Hamilton, Bermuda.

The bride was educated in languages in American schools and has been employed as an executive secretary by Berco, Ltd., in Bermuda. The groom, an alumnus of The Lawrenceville School, was graduated cum laude from Harvard College, Class of 1963. He served as an officer with the Fourth Armored Division Artillery in Germany for two years. For the past three years, he has been with The American Conservation Association, New York City.

WALLETS RIFLED

White Owners Jog, Jogging proved to be an expensive experience for two Princeton men last week.

Gerald E. Degen and Elliot Kaufman, both of the Lawrence Apartments, 200 Alexander Street, parked their cars on S. Harrison Street Saturday near the foot path to jog. They left their trunks containing their wallets locked inside.

When they returned a half hour later at 6 p.m., they discovered a vent window in each car had been forced open. Mr. Degen told Township police that $20 had been taken from his wallet and Mr. Kaufman reported $35 missing from his.

Mrs. Sheldon Rothblatt, Marie Apartments, Facility Road, was the victim of a wallet theft Thursday while she was shopping in the A&P in the Princeton Shopping Center.

She told police that she had gone to a counter and left her pocketbook behind. When she returned moments later, her wallet containing $37 was missing from her purse. The theft took place between 9 and 9:15 a.m.

Two in Borough, Borough police reported a wallet taken on Thursday in shopping in odds.

At 5:15 p.m., Gloria M. Kendrick of Hightstown called to report that her wallet containing $35 and three blank checks had been stolen from her purse in Room 245 at the 20 Nassau Street Building.

It was found in a second floor men's room three hours later. The checks were still missing, police said.

Between 7:30 and 9:15 that evening while Fred M. Blachier and his wife were dining at the Nassau Inn, someone rammed their car in a Palmer Square lot off John Street.

Mrs. Blachier's red wallet containing $8 was taken, police said. The car was unlocked. Mr. Blachier is president of Palmer Square, Inc.

MISSING PERSON FOUND, Police Return FOUD. For the past two years, Charles MacVeagh Jr. has been missing from the Graduate College.

his bust, that is. The real Charles MacVeagh was last February 20, 1920, on Mount Mansfield in New Hampshire when he was 16.

A marble bust valued at $5,000 (Mr. MacVeagh had been on loan to the Graduate College from the University Museum, Borough police say) they never received a report of its theft two years ago.

Last week, Edward Grant, director of a rooming house at 181 Witherspoon Street, brought the 18-inch bust into police headquarters. He said that he had been in a closet at 181 Witherspoon for over a year.

We had some time convincing the Graduate College it was his, said Chief Peter J. McMahon. For their own research, Borough police were able to determine the bust was the work of Herbert Adams, and that Mr. MacVeagh's mother was a diplomat. A plate of the bust is included in Princeton Postcard 1947 published by the Princeton University Press.

TWO SUSPECTS CHARGED

In Annex Restaurant, The two Trenton men have been charged with entry and theft of between $1,000 and $1,400 from the Annex Restaurant, 128½ Nassau Street, on February 15.

Free on $2,000 bail to await Borough court appearance this Wednesday is Edward D. Rodaveller, 30, and his partner, Donald R. Thomas, 31, presently being held by the Hamilton Township police for breaking into a rug company in Hamilton on Sunday. Thomas has also been charged by State police in connection with a robbery at the Princeton Motor Vehicle Inspection Station last month.

They have been charged by the Borough police with allegedly using a 30-foot nylon rope to climb down an exhaust fan shaft to enter the restaurant. More than $1,000 was taken from a safe that had been broken open and an undetermined amount from vending machines, police said. Also implicated in the theft, according to Borough Detective Robert McAvenna, was Katherine Rodaveller, 29, identified as a friend of Rodaveller's. She was charged with possession of stolen property. Borough police said she had worked at the restaurant as a waitress until recently.

CAR FLIPS ON 266

Two Men Injured, Two men were injured, one seriously, when their small car went out of control on Route 266, 300 feet north of Bayard Lane, early Sunday morning and rolled over.

The passenger, James H. Tatam, 27, of Hightstown, was admitted to Princeton Hospital with a ruptured spleen, fractures of vertebrae and contusions of the kidneys. He was operated on at 2:30 Sunday afternoon and his condition is described as poor.

William E. Willinger, 26, 86 Spruce Street, received a fractured collar bone, a fractured ankle, and multiple lacerations and contusions. He was admitted to the hospital.

Drugs in Princeton? 'Easy to Get - But Such a Kid Thing to Do'

- With Princeton teens — even with fifth graders — maintaining heaven is the big drug thing today.
- A lot of Princeton kids plant marijuana seeds and grow their own pot.
- How do you get drugs? At Princeton High, it's no problem: you know who the people are and you go find them.
- Until five years ago, the Mercer County Juvenile Court didn't have a single drug case, not even pot. Since 1965, there have been 200 cases.
- Parents cannot accept the real reason why a child is "dokey."
- "My daughters are at Princeton High; they never touch drugs and don't know anyone who does."
- With a lot of Princeton families, a call from the office is the first hard knowledge that confronts the parents.

The drug problem in Princeton is insistent, persistent. It just won't go away. Part of the problem is drug abuse itself, but a large part is the apathy and blindness of Princeton's adults. This is what emerged Wednesday from the Child Guidance meeting on drug abuse. An audience of 200 at the Princeton Inn listened to experts, each of whom described briefly, factually, his own particular experiences with Princeton kids on drugs.

It was Florence Burke, acting principal of Princeton High, who told the audience that parents simply cannot accept the fact of a child on drugs.

"A segment" of the 1945 population is a drug problem, Miss Burke admitted. "It ranges from the kid you know is on drugs, to the one who wants you to think so. Usually there is no medical evidence."

Miss Burke said students were willing to discuss drug problems with a school official on a private, one-to-one basis, and she warned "this confidence MUST be kept." Pupils do realize, however, that the school system's policy on drug abuse must be followed, she added.

"We try to get a kid on a team, working hard in physical training maybe, or absorbed in drama — any kind of involvement in a project."

Dr. Shirley Van Ferven, physician who treats disturbed children and is associated with Child Guidance, said she first encountered hard drugs about eight years ago in Princeton.

Then she became the thing. She knows of pot farmers in Princeton, cultivating their own marijuana supply.

But a "drastic change" in drug use came last spring, she told the audience she began hearing about, and teens maintaining heroin.

Dr. Van Ferven attributed drug use to boredom, to "a smorgasbord of things to do in Princeton," to fear of failure and desire for some excuse for not achieving in school.

She charged that adults may subconsciously support their kids, because "people want some miracle drug to relieve anxiety."

Thomas Proaccino, the Borough's Juvenile Officer, observed that the police telephone call was, for many Princeton parents, the first "hard knowledge" of what they might have suspected, but had pushed from their minds.

"At last, after the police call, the parents have reason to seek professional help — either for their child or themselves."

Youngsters themselves are often more realistic than their parents, Officer Proaccino said. "Ignorance of the law is never used by kids as an excuse. Faced with prosecution, the kids take it very well — and they NEVER squeal on anybody."

"These youngsters are violators of the law, and the law must be served," he stated. "I hope the community will understand this."

He added that Princeton's police are "shaken" by the way Princeton's drug problem has accelerated.

Judge J. Wilson Noden of the Mercer County Juvenile Court, described the acceleration statistically: until 1965 he didn't have a single drug case, not even marijuana. Glue-sniffing peaked (59 cases) to 67-68. Drug cases, chiefly pot, climbed to 70 in '68-69, and the four-year total, 1965-69, is 200 cases.

"We must treat the use of drugs as a symptom of another problem: lack of maturity to say 'no' or maybe family difficulties."

He pointed out that youngsters before the court don't necessarily need psychiatric help; perhaps only the help of a social agency.

"The Juvenile Court has the advantage of not having to send your first-offenders to jail," he stated.

Illida Wilesky, running the new Child Guidance drug program, said three quarters of her youngsters were "heavily involved," chiefly with heroin, but at least one has never touched drugs, not even pot.

Teens are being referred to Child Guidance by street workers, churches, doctors and schools, and "four or five came to us because they'd heard about us from other kids — this is very encouraging."

She emphasized that the new program can't be run like a clinic. About one-third of those who come are just curious, and may or may not come back.

Child Guidance's chief clinical psychologist, Dr. Fraoese Seidman, said it was three years ago that she first encountered a teenager who admitted to smoking pot.

Dr. Seidman quoted teens who had taped their comments on drugs, and it was "a bright, outgoing, angry girl" who said obtaining drugs was "no problem: you know who the people are."

Other comments by teens on the tape: "Most of my friends smoke pot. None of them droo acid (LSD) or are on heroin; they stopped..." "You want to be like your friends, the way our parents drank when they were young, and still do..." "older kids aren't doing it much any more..." "they ought to speed their time on the pushers; they're the ones who are killing us..." "It's such a kid thing to do..."

According to the police report, Mr. Willinder admitted he was going too fast around a curve at 3:40 in the morning. His car started to skid. After leaving 60 feet of skid marks, it started rolling over, coming to rest on the grassy shoulder at 290. The car was damaged.

Both men were thrown from the car. Mr. Tatum was found lying on the edge of the road way. Police said the driver was apparently able to reach the house at 196 Bayard Lane where a call for help was made.

The Township has an ordinance which says it's unlawful to make any loud, unnecessary or unusual noise which disturbs your comfort, repose, health, peace, or the safety of others. The ordinance includes a paragraph on discharging exhaust into the open air.
The maximum penalty is $300 or 90 days in jail or maybe even both.

Henry T. Page Jr., 20, of Trenton, was held for grand jury action after he pleaded not guilty to three charges and waived a preliminary hearing. He has been charged by the Borough police with possession of stolen property and possession of alcohol in a car, and with trespassing by Matthew J. Glinka, manager of the College Club, a university dining club.

Three youths charged with lying on two university students in their dormitory room last month and taking $433 from them were held for action by a grand jury.

Township Court. A 19-year-old resident of Highway 27 paid three fines last week in Town

BUSINESS In Princeton

RESEARCH GROUP FORMED

By Peterson's Guides. The formation of the Peterson Research Group, a subsidiary that will offer publishing and consultative services to colleges and universities, has been announced by Peter M. Hogeneger, President of Peterson's Guides. Charles M. Woolfolk, Jr., was named director of the new company.

The Peterson Research Group will assist higher educational institutions with the publication and distribution of catalogues, announcements, and other public information materials. The company will offer a full range of publishing services including content editing, organization of manuscripts, editing, proofreading, and creative design. It will also advise schools on effective methods of distributing program information to counselors and prospective applicants.

In making the announcement, Mr. Hogeneger said that although the subsidiary would be autonomous, it would complement the works of Peterson's Guides, a Princeton-based (228 Alexander Street) publisher of educational reference books distributed free to student advisers and school libraries. The objective of the Guide, he said, is to provide students, as well as broad a perspective as possible, while the aim of the Research Group is to assist a college or university in communicating its unique educational opportunities to the interested student. Unless a school can effectively communicate its philosophy of education and its program of programs, he added, it may well have a steady deterioration in the quality of applicants.

Mr. Woolfolk, director of the subsidiary, is a graduate of the University of the South (Seawick) and Tulane University. He was an instructor at the West Virginia Institute of Technology in 1940-41. In 1942 he received an appointment to the Foreign Service of the U.S. Information Agency. He has held diplomatic positions in Ecuador and Chile. While serving as Assistant Cultural Attaché of the American Embassy in Santiago, he worked closely with international education exchange programs.

LUTHERANS PLEDGE $300

To Fight Drug. Dr. Arthur F. Wagner, chairman of the board of elders of Messiah Lutheran Church, has announced that the church is pledging $300 towards the street ministry of William N. Kight. The pledge, he told Princeton Rotary Club, will be paid in quarterly payments.

OK For Drug Program

The new Child Guidance drug program has been approved by the state as a pilot demonstration project and even earmarked for possible expansion.

State approval opens the way for contributions from both Borough and Township governments. Attorney Gordon Griffin had questioned the propriety of municipal contributions to the project.

Richard Russo, chief of the state's Bureau of Narcotics Addiction and Drug Abuse, has said that his bureau is keenly interested in the Child Guidance program and would like a periodic report on its progress. It isn't difficult, he said, to get money, but he has an expense budget.

Borough, Township and the United Fund have each donated $10,000 for the program. Contributions from private donors have also been received.

MUSIC In Princeton

SYZYGY IS NEXT

In Concert Series. The violinist, Heinrich Syzygy will be heard at McCosh Theatre next Monday at 8:30 as the fourth artist in Series I of the Princeton University Concerts. Tickets are available at the McCosh Theatre box office, 300 Nassau St., now a citizen of Mexico, Syzygy early won fame throughout Europe. He has played under the baton of Bruno Walter, Leonard Bernstein, Paul Paray and S. Malcolm Sargent.

A popular recording artist he was awarded the "Grand Prix du Disque" in 1935 for his recording of three Bach Sonatas, and three Partitas for violin alone, in 1937 for his recording of the Second Prokofiev Violin Concerto, in 1940 for the Brahms Concerto and in 1941 for the Beethoven Sonatas recorded with Artur Schnabel.

He is on the staff of the Mexican National University, and directs the Pan-American course in Advanced Violin Technique and Interpretation.

Mr. Syzygy's program in Princeton will be Sonata in Bb Major, K 454 by Mozart; Partita No. 2 in D Minor (Solo Violin) by J. S. Bach; Sonata Breve by Manuel Ponce; "Danza de la Gitana" by Ernesto Halffter; Song of Roxane by Karol Szymanowski; "Moto Perpetuo" by Ottokar Novacek.

WOLF, COMPLETE

Italiano Song Cycle. Hugo Wolf's complete song cycle, "Italienisches Liederbuch" will be sung next Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. in 18 McCosh on the University campus under the auspices of the department of music.

Tickets are available at the Woolworth Center concert of free from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., weekdays (te. 924-0453), and will be on sale at the door the evening of the concert. Seats are not reserved.

Programming a Hit at McCarter

A Series II McCarter Theater audience witnessed an historic "first" on Monday night when the New York New Music Ensemble, under the direction of Richard Dufallo, presented a program of contemporary music. With the exception of "The Unanswered Question" by Charles Ives, (the music that opened the program), all the compositions represented music composed during the last ten years.

In addition to the Ives piece were Yannis Xenakis' electronic taped score, "Orient Occident"; Three Madrigals by George Crumb, based on the poems of Garcia Lorca; "Event: Cynergy II" by Earle Brown, a work based on "chance" or aleatory principles; and "Syzygy" by David Del Tredici. Phyllis Bryn Julson, soprano, was the soloist for the Crumb Madrigals and Mr. Del Tredici's "Syzygy" based on two poems of James Joyce, "The Puer" and "Nightpieces."

The Ives work is a classic and needs no further comment here. It suffered in performance from a very small body of strings — just a string quartet was used instead of the usual small orchestral string section. Still the music received an effective reading. The Electronic taped score of the Greek composer Xenakis had in interesting moments, but as a whole, the music seemed a repetition of the best of Varese and others who have explored this medium.

Hearing George Crumb's Three Madrigals, it was difficult to imagine the composer as the recipient of a Pulitzer Prize. The music was ultra-mannered with overdone effects that served no esthetic purpose for this listener, at least. The music, which was scored for soprano, voice, vibraphone and double bass, was well performed, but uninteresting for the most part.

No Lack of Variety. Earle Brown's "Event: Cynergy II," a composition based on the principles of "chance" and improvisational techniques, somehow worked very well in this performance. The contrapuntal effects by the larger ensemble were quite exhilarating at times and the music did not want for lack of variety.

What makes the music so effective is the fine idiomatic writing Mr. Brown has achieved for the various instruments. The music at times appeared highly complex, but always listenable and, for the most part, held the attention.

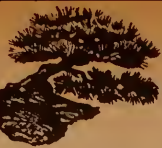

The final work presented, David Del Tredici's "Syzygy," was by far the most impressive score of the more recent work on the program. The music, composed for a large mixed ensemble, including vibraphone, solo soprano and solo horn, was given a stunning reading with all the interesting sonorities and continuations of timbres beautifully brought forth.

The music, a two-movement work based on the aforementioned poems of James Joyce, lasts about a half hour, and it is quite a credit to the young composer's musical gift that he was able to weld a complex series of effects, episodes and colors into so rewarding a musical event. One would rather that Mr. Del Tredici has a complete command of his musical craft and at the same time knows how to express a line in a genuinely artistic way.

His music is well organized and seldom tedious with respect to the use of certain types of effects. His handling of the voice was quite attractive and Miss Julson's performance was exquisitely wrought.

As a concept, the idea of an evening of new contemporary music at McCarter is not only worthwhile, but vital. Maida Pollack and the Princeton University Concerts Committee deserve much praise for undertaking so important an achievement.

Sony's Answer for the Mike-Shy Executive:

The New Model 80

It's strictly business with the Sony Model 80 AC/DC cassette tape recorder! All business because no one ever gets the built-in condenser microphone. And that means no one ever gets self-conscious or mike-shy. Operation is never a problem either, because Sonymatic recording control gives you perfect recordings automatically—every time. In the office, you can dictate with both hands free. In the conference room, you get a complete record of every word, including the slightest whisper, thanks to the built-in condenser mike—the most sensitive you can get. Use Sony's C-120 tape cassette and get up to two hours' recording time. If your meetings run longer, the Model 80's alarm audibly signals you to change cassettes. Add to all this convenience the Model 80's handsome black exterior, and you have an attractive addition to any office or conference room. Come in and see this remarkable business machine today. It's new from Sony/Superscope and it means business! Only $99.50.

Rock! Rhythm! (and Eensy-weensy Spider)

On top of spaghetti!
*All covered with cheese,

When somebody mizzed...*

Teaching the classical her-itage to the young is only one thing Mrs. Eugene Tay-lor does during her toddlers music sessions at the YW-CA.

Lithe, supple — you know she's a dancer before she tells you — Christine Taylor has 46 four and five-year-olds in seven classes of this music workshop. A class meets twice a week, which is probably why Mrs. Taylor is so slim.

Body movement, canto-mime, singing, instruments, mathematics (in a them a tics?) and philosophy (phi-losophy?) are all part of any workshop period. But each class is different, each group of youngsters has its own very firm ideas.

"The sessions are to be fun for the children, and I let them determine the way things are going to go," says Mrs. Taylor. "at first I asked them to bring their favorite records, but they didn't seem to care much about the ones that were brought in. So I brought 'Sly and the Family Stone' and they loved it. Rock and roll, rhythm and blues — these are fa-vorites with everybody now."

Somebody asked one day what "rhythm" was.

"Well, you all know num-

bers. And you all know how a conductor stands in front of a big orchestra? Yes, they did know about conduc-tors. Television, maybe?

Mrs. Taylor then told the children they were an or-chestra, and asked if they could count while they "played" — that is, listened to the mus-ic. And they did! I told them about odd and even numbers and soon they discovered that 2-4-6-8 would fit "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star" with nothing left over. Then they discovered that 1-2-3-4-5-6-7-8-9-10 would fit a waltz with nothing left over.

Somebody, of course, wanted to count in nines...

That was the mathematics session. Philosophy? "What does 'image' mean?" one toddler asked.

"Well, music makes you feel a certain way," replied Christine Taylor, and they talked for a while about that.

Instruments play a big part in dance and canto-mime. Kazoos ("they're dif-ferent colors!") are sim-ple horns you hum into and thereby make a tune... drums, of course... and one boy brought rattles made of juice cans filled with un-cooked macaroni.

"It only makes music, it doesn't make the songs I want it to make!" protested one boy, peering into old-fashioned wax shepherds' pipes.

In several classes, boys and girls make up their own songs, and sometimes they put the songs on tape for parents to hear.

"The mouse is in the house/ mother's on the chair/ in her underwear/ she scared the mouse to death" — to the tune of "The Farmer in the Dell," was one ex-periment in extemporiza-tion.

The bounce and cheer of the toddlers ("Itsy bitsy

Herb Schapiro of 18 Heron town Circle has done the writing for a dramatization of
"The Mr. Nobody" Knobs, which will open Off Broadway on May 11. The idea for adapting the best-selling collection of essays and poems by ghetto children came to Mr. Schapiro while he was working last summer in a Trenton "Theater-in-the-Streets" program.

Taking the book (which was edited by Stephen M. Joseph, a schoolteacher in New York City) as raw material, adding music by composer Gary Friedman, and production and direction by Jeff Britton and Robert H. Livingston, Mr.
Schapiro has hopes of presenting "a day in the life of the ghetto," complete with its dreams, hopes and nightmares.

Mr. Schapiro is presently developing a theater program at Mercer County Community College. He has another play to his credit before this. His "Kill the One Evad Man" was produced at Provincetown
Mass., last year.

paing in the upcoming 1970 and 1972 elections.

The study will scrutinize the use of mass media for campaigning, and will reach all the way from the Presidential to municipal races.

The Citizens' Research Foundation is a non-partisan organization that has specialized in this type of research since 1938. Its director, Dr. Herbert E. Alexander of Clover Lane, is a former director of the Presidential Commission on Campaign Costs.

He has also published many studies on public reporting of campaign money, tax incentives for campaign contributions, and the financing of the elections in 1954.

Specific areas to be covered by the new research will be the financing of the 1972 presidential campaign, the newspaper advertising costs of the 1970 congressional election campaigns, and studies of state and local campaign costs. The researchers will also expand their educational programs and hold seminars on the problems of political broadcasting.

The grant to Citizens' Research was among some $3 million in grants announced this week by the Ford Foundation in New York. Also included was a $100,000 grant to Columbia University for research on voter participation in the electoral process, with emphasis on why citizens do not vote.

SCOUTS PLAN SHOW

On Conservation. "What can I do to stop pollution?" will be a major theme of the scout anti-pollution show that is coming soon to Pennington. Explorer Post 44 members have planned exhibits, films and guest speakers for the two-day show in the Timberlane School. Hours will be from 10 to 10 on Saturday, March 21, and 1 to 6 on Sunday, March 22.

"Chucklevision food" will be available throughout the show hours, according to John Coats, president of Post 44 and a Junior at Hopewell Valley Regional School.

"In the beginning we hoped for a good show, but now we know it is going to be more than that," he said.

Several other Scout units, including the George Washington council will be helping Post 44 organize the show, which was delayed to expand its scope.

Reprints of recent topical conservation articles from leading magazines will be available for visitors to take home. Explorer Coats points out that the show is intended to be educational, and visitors will learn what role they can have in reducing pollution in New Jersey.

Tickets for the "Adventures in Conservation" show will go on sale March 7. They will be made available to the 126 scout units in the regional council. Several group reductions are available for schools and to organizations that purchase 50 or more.

MOMMIE PAINTS

Daddy, Too? Six children at John Witherspoon School can paint with pride through Friday, March 20.

Art by the parents of these six students will be on display in the main hall of the school, and is open to the public between 8:30 and 4 daily.

Artists who are also mothers, are Helen Schwartz, who uses familiar roadside objects in her painting, "Last Gas"; Jan Swearer, who shows, in "Emerging Buds" what one fourth grader called "a special tree in a special world"; and Ann Woolfolk, who has contributed four drawings to the display.

Then, there's Renee Levine, whose canvas "Knights and Kings" is lively and colorful; Trudy Glucksberg who uses black and white to enhance the colors in "Memorial Day"; and — quite at home in the patriarchy — a father, T. H. Freilingsma, who has lent "Walden," a two and one-half foot long Basset hound carved from wood.

INDIANS TO PARLAY

At Princeton University. A four-day convocation to discuss the goals and challenges of American Indians will be held March 23 through 26 at the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs.

Representing many tribes from all parts of the United States, Mexico, Canada and America, the assembly of distinguished Indian writers, artists, scholars and educators will discuss matters ranging from preservation of the cultural heritage to the 1968 Civil Rights Act.

Dr. Alfonso A. Ortiz will chair the meeting, the first such gathering in American Indian history. Dr. Ortiz, an assistant professor of anthropology at Princeton and a member of the Towa tribe in the Southwest, views the convocation as an opportunity to demonstrate "that we are not the marionette masters about whom so much benevolent concern has been voiced in the past."

"Quite simply, we wish to inform modern America that there are significant numbers of Indians who combine lives of scholarship or personal accomplishment with activism in the cause of Indian advancement, and that we should be permitted to take the lead in matters affecting our people's welfare and future."

Among those scheduled to attend are Pulitzer Prize winner N. Scott Momaday, Vine Deloria Jr., author of "Custer," and others.

WRESTLING TITLE WON

As Tigers Whip Cornell, Tied, 16, after the first four matches, Princeton's wrestling team gave up only a draw in the last six bouts Saturday to Princeton, 25 to 8. The victory gave Coach Johnny Johnson's team the Ivy League championship and a fine 12-1 record.

Lehigh was the only team to defeat the Tigers, while Franklin and Marshall earned a tie. Among Ivy opponents, Princeton rolled up 150 points while yielding 56 and only Columbia reached double figures against the well-balanced champions.

As has been the case virtually all season, the heavier the weight of the contestants, the more matches the Tigers won. Cornell had taken the 118 and 142-lb. bouts to offset victories by Steve Garner and Al Oyeda in the early going, but when Jake Feldmeier of the Tigers recorded a decision in the 156-lb. class, Princeton was never headed again.

Captain Tom Potts beat his 150-lb. opponent easily, 7 to 1, before Cornell earned its final two points via a tie in the 167-lb. bout. The Tigers then added two more one-sided decisions credited to Ted Madden at 177 and football guard Emil Deliere at 191 before heavyweight Chuck Dressell pinned his man at 247 of the second period.

The eastern intercollegiate will take place Friday and Saturday at Penn State. For a year ago, Princeton has hopes of improving its showing there this weekend.

PENN UPSET BY NIAGARA

Ivy Champions Frozen Out, you can't protect a one-point lead in basketball by shooting 26% in the second half. Ahead by as much as 9 in the early going, Pennsylvania's Ivy League champions found Calvin Murphy and Niagara more than they could handle Saturday night in Jadwin Gym, when the final 20 minutes turned their dreams of NCAA berths into dust.

With a capacity crowd of 7,500 sitting in on the proceedings, the tide began to turn in the last five minutes of the first period, when the Quakers appeared in control of the action with a 31-22 lead. By the time the horn signalled the intermission, Niagara had connected for a dozen points to Penn's four, and trailed by only 35-31.

A free throw ten seconds in to the final round tied the score, and a layup less than half a minute later sent the victors ahead for good. Their lead was 11 points (39-48) with ten minutes to go, and they maintained their momentum to the finish.

Penn lost because its guards, Dave Wohl and Steve Basky, had to take too many shots over the Niagara zone to get 33 points between them, and be 18 consecutive victories, im- pressive enough to earn them seventh place in the national rankings. Since their next op- ponent would have been Villanova, which they had beaten earlier, and highly regarded South Carolina was an upset- victim in the Atlantic Coast Conference playoffs, it seemed possible they might have gone on to the national Finals, North Carolina State and St. Bonaventure are the other two teams in the eastern regional finals which begin Thursday.

All that must now wait until next year, when the Quakers are likely to get another shot at NCAA act on because their starting team returns intact. For Princeton fans, however, it was revealing that the Quakers could be made to look so bad once their big men were in trouble.

Unbeaten Freshmen Unlikely to Bring Tigers Instant Ivy Title

How much will the undefeated Princeton freshman basketball team do to improve the Tigers' chances of winning the Ivy League title in its first year of varsity play? Ever since the Class of 1973 began bowling over the December opposition in a tough 17-game schedule, the traditional cry of "What 'til next year" has been growing in intensity. As Coach Art Hyland's operatives came down the stretch, eventually completing the first perfect season for a freshman quintet since the winter of 1956-57, there were open warnings to Penn that its reign at the top of the Ivy heap would not last beyond March of 1971.

However, a realistic look at Princeton's fortunes indicates that the best the Tigers can logically hope for is to move up one berth in the Ivy standings by winning what may be a three or four-way race for runner-up honors next season. In so doing, they would inevitably improve on this year's 9.5 mark which was good for a two-game lead over fourth-place Dartmouth and Yale.

It is quite unlikely that Pennsylvania's young squad, now 25-2 on the season and seventh-ranked nationally after being upset here by Niagara, will fall victim to "senioritis." All five starters return next year, the upcoming freshmen are as good as the few reserves whose varsity careers end, and Penn's lone-armed rosters aren't about to find a blase, over-confident team playing for their next winter.

No Contest. Best indication that the current crop of Princeton freshmen will have their hands full in Ivy competition is the fact that they couldn't come close to handling the current Tiger varsity. When the two teams met on the court, none of the big men could stay with John Hummer, and Jeff Petrie was far too much for the freshman guards. It is, accordingly, quite unlikely that any of the crop of newcomers will fill the gap left by the two Tiger stars—certainly not in their first year on the varsity. Not only did the two graduating seniors average close to 18 points apiece in league action but their defensive ability as seniors was far greater than varsity newcomers are likely to be able to contribute to a team's all-around welfare.

The achievements of the freshman quintet have nonetheless been considerable, and at least one long-time observer of the sport here thinks that "next winter, the varsity ought to consist of the four best sophomores and Bill SICKLER." The opinion is probably too sweeping, as a yearling varsity experience can often outweigh a sophomore's potential—but this year's starting sophomores, Reg Bird and Bob Ryder, will indeed have a battle on their hands to keep their places in the starting lineup.

Coach Pete Carrilli's greatest strength next winter will be in the backcourt, particularly if 6-2 Brian Taylor stays there. That would give the Tigers four players of considerable ability: Bird, a junior, Taylor and two other sophomores, Ted Manakas and Jim Sullivan.

Two with Extreme Ability. Taylor and Manakas are undoubtedly the best pair of guards ever to matriculate at Princeton in the same club. Taylor, the mule eye-catching of the two, scored 486 points to set a freshman record here, although his 28.6 average was below Bill Bradley's 30.1. Taylor played a 17-game schedule compared to Bradley's 15.

Despite the fact that Taylor by no means always saw 40 minutes of action because a number of the games were so one-sided, he topped 30 points eight times, hitting a game high of 39. He has a fine outside shot, but it was his moves and his fakes under the basket that had Jadwin Gym fans delighted with what they saw. He is adept at close-in stealing, but, in common with freshmen everywhere, his overall defensive play needs constant honing.

It was largely Manakas who kept the freshmen from being a one-man ball team. Averaging 17.5 points, he complemented Taylor beautifully in bringing the ball down court, setting the offense in motion and melting zone defenses with fine outside shooting. When a stall was needed to preserve a slim lead, his dribbling and ball-handling were virtual perfection.

Up front, Hyland had two relatively big men in 6-8 Bill Daake and Bill Kapler, as well as 6-5 Billy Joe Jackson. Daake was the third man on the team in double figures with a 14.8 average but Kapler's rebounding and defense and he was more adept on defense. One of them will almost certainly beat out varsity holdovers of comparable height for Hummer's job.

The Schedule Was Tough. Offensively, the freshmen averaged 76 points a game, but showed their defensive problems by allowing their opponents 68. They made it into three figures on two occasions, against Rider and Yale.

Best indicator of their ability was the toughness of the schedule, not only were most of the top eastern independents defeated but ten of the 17 victories were recorded on the road. During one stretch of two full months, they played nine straight games away from home, so that returning to Jadwin was almost as if they were on another unfamiliar court.

In addition to a pair of victories each over Penn and Columbia, the Class of 1973 defeated strong opponents from such colleges as Temple, Villanova, Manhattan, NYU, Army, Fordham and Rutgers. The freshmen quintet at Rutgers was unusually good, and when the young Tigers put their 13-game winning streak on the line there, New Brunswick fans jammed the gym to capacity while hundreds of fans were turned away. It was a 76-72 final, Manakas scoring 31 points for his season's high and Taylor adding 27.

These two seem sure starters next year, along with the dependable Bill SICKLER, a shoo-in for next year's captaincy. With juniors Bird and Ryder and sophomores Daake and Kapler all strong possibilities for the remaining two berths, the Tigers will clearly be building for the future.

The longer-range thinking sees Penn losing some of its strength and balance when the Class of 1971 graduates, with the Tigers holding over virtually all of theirs and conceivably picking up another lot better than average group of freshmen next September. Reports have three top-flight New Jersey schoolboys heading this way—whom Andy Rimol of Mountain Lakes, between whose height and seven feet on the bar there is no daylight.

CROWD ENJOYS HOCKEY
Despite One-Sided Outcome
Cornell's undefeated hockey team stated to its 57th straight victory this season Saturday afternoon, easily defeating Princeton, 11 to 5, but a crowd of better than 1,000 audibly enjoyed the proceedings from start to finish. Despite the 5:17 p.m. record crowd, the game, which was broadcast on WPTZ-TV, was not sold out. The sport has not lost its hold here and the attendance in Baker Hall was twice that in Jadwin Gym, where the wrestling team was wrapping up the Ivy title.

The Cornell hockey team is the best hockey team to play here, it is only because they are short of really topflight ability in the goal. Brian Cooper is leading the east with a 1.74 goals allowed average but the credit for his standing must go to the team playing in front of him. He is not as impressive as others who have guarded the net here in the recent past.

For most of the first period it appeared probable that Princeton might not get a single shot on the Cornell cake. But after 17 minutes passed before the home team's first shot came in the form of a clearing shot while the Tigers were trying to work off a penalty.

Three In Three Minutes. Statistics are not at hand, but it is entirely possible that the Princetonians achieved something that none of the other teams on Cornell's schedule managed this winter. In the space of less than three minutes after the first period, the Tigers scored three goals against the Ivy League champions.

The feat emphasized Cornell's Ivy Hockey well a problem in the 10-11. Cornell's Coach Bill Harkness returned Cropper in favor of Bob Rule and the Tigers soon beat him three to one on six shots. When the score was narrowed to 8-4, Harkness hurriedly returned Cropper to action.

To the fans' satisfaction, the home team's first goal came once in the second period and again toward the end of the game. Considering that Princeton got only 17 shots on goal, it was a highly satisfactory degree of productivity. Coach Maddy Thibault, on the other hand, kept 54 shots from going into his cage, and from most of the which found the net, he had 11 in the chance. Cornell is so deep that its fourth line kept the Tigers away, while its defense commitments the attack beautifully at the blue line.

The Ithacans this week start defense of their eastern title, and are virtually certain to win from there to the nationals at Lake Placid. They have now won 35 straight Ivy games and 45 in eastern competition.

For Princeton, seven seniors concluded their careers in the game. Coach Jim Souther, Beet Meers and Steve Gill on defense; forwards Jon Wright and Gordon Stollery, in addition to Fligman. The latter, of course, is the real loss after three years in the nets. If the Tigers had comparable quality available next winter, the chance for a giant step forward would be considerably greater.

ROSSI LOSES ON MAT
But Reaches Regional Finals
Loudoun Rossi, Princeton High School's fine heavyweight wrestler, advanced to the final round of the Central Jersey Region 3 championships held last weekend at Edwin Hight School, before being eliminated in the final round. "He did himself proud," said his coach, Tom Murray.

Entering Friday night's opening round with a 13-1 record, Rossi scored a first-period pin against Wayne Sadovskis, a Middlesex, N.J. Middlesex County champion. In the semi-finals Saturday afternoon, Rossi, a senior, defeated Bal Kilmowicz of South Brunswick, 8-2. It was only Kilmowicz's second defeat of the season — both at the hands of Rossi.

Then Rossi was faced in the final with what Murray was to describe later as an "insurmountable task." That was defeating 6-4, 255-pound Greg Freaney of New Providence. The undefeated Freaney had scored two quick pins on his way to the final confrontation, with Rossi.

"Not only is he big," said Murray, "but he is quick and has lots of talent. He did a tremendous job; Rossi just couldn't get anything going against him."

Freaney, a senior, 6-2, and advanced to the NJSLA state final matches to be held Saturday at Princeton University's Jadwin Gym.

Rossi, who weighs only 195, gave away about 60 pounds to Freaney. "It was just asking too much," said Murray. "Freaney is now 17-0 in competition this year."

Murray reported that there is talk of adding a new, 191-pound class next year. Presently, the top weight is 175. Anyone above that is considered a heavyweight.

In any event, Rossi, a junior, will be back next year. Now people know who we are, he put us on the map," said Murray.

League Seeks Teams
The Princeton Business Southball League has extended an invitation to any firm or business in the area, that would like to join the league for the 1970 season. The league would like to begin in early May.

The league is sloppier and plays games late Tuesday afternoon. Those interested should write to Thomas J. Ward, RCA Laboratories, Princeton, N. J.

PDS FIVE ENDS SEASON
With Loss to Friends Central
What would have been a very satisfying end to an otherwise poor season was spoiled for the Princeton Day School basketball team last week, when it lost 74-68 to Friends Central. The contest was marred by a controversial foul call in the closing seconds that halted the Panthers' comeback.

Treaching by 18 points, 69-51, with just four and a half minutes to play, the Panthers put on a strong rally to close the game to 74-68 with 24 seconds left. Randy Martin who accounted for all 16 of the team's points during this period, stole in on boards and went in for a lay-up. His shot was good, but the official called Martin for an offensive foul, nullifying the basket. He could have gone either way.

Friends made good on the resulting one and one situation to sew up the contest. Playing his last game for PDS, Martin made it his best ever, scoring 16 points. Coach Chan Jones (Lee Moyer and Mrs. Dedee) praised Martin for putting on one of the finest individual efforts he had ever seen, during last week's four-minute game. Gary Rosenberg contributed 13 points, and Steve Bash, 12.

The loss put the Panthers' final season mark at 3-15, but better days lie ahead. Martin will be the only player not returning next year. Bash and Rosenberg, the two responsible for most of the scoring this year, will return, as will Carl Jacobson, Tony Dale and Dave Claghorn. Coach Chan Jones also sees help coming from a couple of good freshmen and a middle school team that was undefeated this year. It should be several years before PDS approaches 3-15 again.

PDS UNDEFEATED
In Middle School Basketball
Playing before a crowd of approximately 250, one of the largest ever to witness a basketball game at Princeton Day School, the PDS middle school team ran off its ninth consecutive victory last week, 64-42 over Rutgers Prep and finished undefeated. It was the first time in school's brief history that a basketball team had gone unbeaten.

Led by Mike Jones, who averaged 32.6 points per game this year, the team also was sparked by the backcourt play of Greg and Evan Bash, Dave Straut and George Mayzell provided defensive strength and headed the Panthers' control the boards. Keith Thomas, Sandy Buck, Gary Salup and Fran Treves gave the team good reserve strength.

Coached by Steve Hahn, the squad averaged 66 points per game, a record, and scored 86 in one game, another record.

MAGUIRE NAMED
To Penn-Jersey Team
Maguire, the Hun basketball team's fine 6-4 senior center was named to the first All-Penn-Jersey conference team. He was named to the team dominated by players from George and Germantown Friends schools' winners in their respective divisions. Scoring over 1,000 points in his career at Hun, Maguire averaged 22 a game this year.

Germantown Friends, which won the Day School Division, placed two seniors, Bill DeFranghe and Chris Corio on the first team. Both averaged 20 points a game. George, the Boarding School division champion, filled the other two spots with 6-6 center Ruffin Hobbs, who averaged 23 a game, and Ron Hancock, the smallest member on the squad at 5-11. Hancock, who scored 12 a contest, was the only junior selected.

Hun's Mike Rossi, with a 17 points per game average, made the second team, which also included Tony Jackson of George School, Ivy Mingo of Solebury, Iv Sparks of Friends and Percy Morton of Germantown. Mingo and Jackson will be back next year, the rest are seniors.

Those receiving Honorable Mention included Randy Martin, captain of Princeton Day School's squad; Rick Ziegler of Hun and Frank Andrews and Vernon Hammon of Pennington Prep.

BOROUGH MISS AWAY, 39-35

Township Five Misses, 39-35. Looking throughout the game until the final few minutes, Borough police defeated the Township police basketball team for the second straight year Friday, 39-35.

The two local departments clashed in a March of Dimes Tournament held at Notre Dame High School which featured three contests among six Mercer County police departments. The Borough defeated the Township in the same tournament last year, 34-29.

In the Borough Township game, one of sports' harshest axioms — a good big man will beat a good small man — was tested. In this case, two small men beat two big men because, essentially, the game was a battle between 5-11 Tom Micaud and 5-8 Robert Muccarelli of the Borough and 6-6 Dave Cromwell and 6-3 Jerry Offredo of the Township.

Between them, Micaud and Muccarelli scored 38 of the Borough's 39 points. Micaud, who played for Stiemert High School in 1939 and '60, scored a game-high 22 and kept the Borough in the contest when it appeared that the Township might pull too far ahead to be caught. Micaud ignited the fourth-period rally that snatched victory away from the Township and was named the game's most valuable player.

WANTED: FOR THEFT. Borough patrolman Robert Muccarelli (right) and Tom Micaud stole victory from the Township police Friday in a March of Dimes Benefit Tournament to a 39-35 lead, a margin it was to maintain until the last period.

Most of Offredo's 16 points were pretty outside jumpers. He and Muccarelli were the only two to score in every period.

Others on the Township squad who played were Mario Musso, Al Funk, John Hammond and Dave Wabur.

The Final Period. The fourth quarter began with the Township on top, 27-20, and Cromwell's layup upped the margin to 29-20. Then Micaud, who had been held to six points per game, came back with a driving layup and Micaud hit a long jumper to make it 31-28. With three minutes to go, Muccarelli engineered the play that turned the game around.

A superb ball handler, Muccarelli drove in and attempted an underhand layup that started a few inches off the floor. The ball arched straight up, some six feet above the basket. It fell straight down and in for two points. It also brought a rain of anoraks from the small crowd. Fouled on the play, Muccarelli converted to tie the score at 31-31. With 1:31 remaining, Offredo put the Township out in front again but another bucket by Muccarelli decided it. Then Micaud pounced the Township down with two flicks of his wrist. A long one-hander from the side gave the Borough the lead again with less than a minute to play. Micaud's second basket of the night tied it once more at 33-31. As soon as the Borough got the ball again, Micaud let fly from deep in the corner: the Borough had the lead for good. Muccarelli's final layup came with six seconds left.

Township Take Lead. Muccarelli opened the scoring with a layup on a nice feed by Micaud. He was fouled on the play but those three points were all the Borough was to score.

second period, and Mike Tomlin's long shot from the side at the end of the half gave the Township a 17-9 edge.

There was no intimidation. Two baskets each by Offredo and Cromwell and one by Maccarelli accounted for the Township's 10 points in the third period. Muccarelli continued to display his instinct for the hoop by scoring six more points in the third period, two on driving layups, to keep the Borough's hopes alive. The Borough's final four points, however, in the third period were scored by Micaud; apparently, he had found the range.

The sudden reversal which brought defeat shocked the Township and the players fled dejectedly into the locker room. After pointing to the 12-point deficit on the next page.

Youth Movement Sparks Lawrenceville Hockey

What began as a mediocre season for the Lawrenceville School varsity hockey team ended with a first place finish in the Wisconsin Tournament and a fine 15-7 record, the best in school history.

The reason for this strong comeback is chiefly due to a large reshuffling of personnel, which saw many of the older players on the squad yield first and second line positions to a remarkably young group of present starters, half of whom are freshmen.

This "youth group" won 11 of its last 15 games and set several school records in the process, including, the highest number of team goals scored in one season, and the best winning percentage.

Including two sets of brothers, Bill and Randy Koch of Princeton, and Bruce and Scott Quackenbush of Rocky Hill, sons of Bill Quackenbush, varsity hockey coach at Princeton, the Lawrenceville squad, the youngest "average-age" team in the school's history, has many players that have come up through the area's Pee-Wee hockey programs.

Lawrenceville's captain, Chris Sowers, is from Princeton, as is reserve defenseman, Bruce Willard, forwards Chris Broadwater, Mark Cleary and Jack Culbertson, all of Lawrence Township, made important contributions to the team. Seven of these boys will return next year.

In the Washington Turney, Lawrenceville had an easy first-round victory over Cranford, 8-0, on Friday. Moving into the second round it met the Hershey Junior Bears, winners of a strong Hill Squad in overtime. The Larrives captured this bruising contest in overtime on a winning tally by Bill Koch assisted by his brother, Randy.

Moving into the final contest for the championship, Lawrenceville met a fired-up Wisashickon team, conquerors of Princeton Day, playing on its home ice.

Bill Koch gave Lawrenceville a 1-0 lead in the first period, and just 18 seconds after Wisashickon tied the score in the second period, he put his team ahead to stay on an assist from Bruce Quackenbush. The losers tried desperately to tie it again, but Sowers gave the Larrives an insurance goal, and a 3-1 triumph.

Bill Koch set an individual record with the highest number of goals scored by one player during a season.

fouls called against the Township in the second half to one for the Borough (the result of the Borough's superior ball handling, which drew the fouls, rather than uneven officiating). Cromwell added, "Oh, well, I can't win them all."

Trouble is, when you play only one game a year, it's tough to lose. As long as Macquarrell and Michael are on the Borough squad, the only hope for the Township lies in consolidation.

KEITH WARD FIRST

In 18-Mile Bike Race, Fifteen year old Keith Ward won Century Road Club's third race in its winter championship series Sunday when he covered the 18 mile course Rocky Hill to East Millstone and back in 55 minutes.

He finished almost five minutes ahead of Jay Caras, who was clocked in 59:27. Dan Hawley, 61:50, was third. In all, eight riders finished the race.

Next in the series is a circuit event Sunday at Neshanic.

FOUR MEDALS WON

Fy Flying Fish Swimmers. Four members of the YMCA Flying Fish team, all 10 years old, won four gold medals and one silver among them competing in AAU meets during the weekend.

posted his best time — 39.1 seconds. At the NYAC meet, Better O'Hara captured the boy's 10 and under 50-yard freestyle in 29.0. Also in New York, Carol Wagner won the girls' 10 and under 50-yard breaststroke in 39.5. She won a silver medal for her time of 31.2 in the 50-yard freestyle.

ICA-A Track Meet May Come to Jadwin

Picturesque Jadwin Gymnasium, which last weekend played host to its first NCAA basketball game, may be the site next March of the 50th annual indoor ICA-A track meet. A mammoth affair from point of view of participants (5-6,000), it has for many years been held in Madison Square Garden.

Coaches at the 70 colleges involved voted as far back as last May to ask their athletic directors to make the move. Asa S. Busnell, co-director of the meet, told a track writers' luncheon in New York this week that Jadwin's facilities are far superior to the Garden's and indicated that a switch to Princeton will be given "very serious consideration."

R. Kenneth Fairman, Princeton's Director of Athletics, said it will be a matter of several weeks before a decision is reached here on the availability of Jadwin for the immediate future. He pointed out that such a move out of the Garden would be relatively permanent, and that ICA-A officials would want the same site for some years.

We'll have to correlate such a move with commitments to our own winter sports schedules," Fairman said. "We are not about to push our basketball team around in deference to track, and the dates and time of day for staging the meet will require our approval."

ICA-A officials are interested in holding the indoor meet on Saturday and Sunday (as opposed to Saturday afternoon and evening in New York). They feel that a good portion of Jadwin's 6,200 seats (for track) could be sold for such an event, but are also interested in exploring the possibilities of television.

Despite its recent arrival on the athletic scene, Madison Square Garden's track facilities are markedly inferior to Jadwin's. In New York, there are only four lanes on the oval, severely limiting the number of finalists in numerous events, whereas Jadwin has six. The Garden's infield straggleway has six lanes. Jadwin has a down.

No final decision will be reached until May, both Fairman and Busnell have indicated.

TWO CHARGED FOR DRUGS
One Arrested on Campus. An 18-year-old youth and a 20-year-old former Princeton University student have been charged with narcotic violations by Borough police.

James M. Golding, 18, of 44 Pine Place, turned himself in to police, after they had searched his apartment Friday afternoon. Armed with a search warrant, Lt. Michael Carnevale and P.D. Timothy Hultzing allegedly found him with a hypodermic needle and prescription drugs at the youth's apartment.

He was released after his $3,000 bail was posted by a bondsman. He will appear in Borough court March 18 to answer to charges of drug possession.

Victor S. Harris, 20, was picked up at 4:15 Saturday afternoon at Stanhope Hall on Princeton campus by Sgt. John J. Bellow and P.D. John Mackuson. He had been enrolled at the University until recently, residing at 11 Dayler Hall, police said, but had been asked to leave the university. Harris has been charged with possession of narcotics to await a court hearing on the 18th. He was released from jail after posting $500 bail.

Chief Peter J. McCrohan said police found a "sizeable amount" of narcotics when they searched his room in Cooper Hall. He said they found "bags of hashish and bags of raw marijuana." "At least we think it is hashish," he said. "We haven't had it analyzed yet."

The charge against Harris was made by P.D. Hultzing. He said he saw Harris with two Borough officers working on the case, Chief McCrohan said.

JUDGE REDUCES CHARGE
Against Johnson's Nephew. Because they had good records and "promising future," charges of breaking and entry and larceny against two Princeton University students, one of them a nephew of former President Lyndon Johnson, were reduced last week by Mercer County Judge Samuel D. Leontz Jr.

Philip C. Bobbitt, 22, of Austin, Texas, son of Mr. Johnson's sister Rebecca, and Gregory Trevorton of Denver, Colo. were each fined $1,000 and sentenced to serve 180 days in lesser county jails for disorderly persons. The two could have been sentenced to five years in prison and fined $5,000 under the original charge.

They were apprehended last April by Borough Police as they walked out of Community Wine and Liquors on Witherspoon Street with two malcases filled with 42 bottles valued at $328. They had thrown a cinder block through the door of the shop to gain entrance.

Mercer County prosecutor Vincent Panaro explained that "you consider whether a conviction would be more onerous to one individual than to another."

"Reducing charges is a matter of 'discretion,' Mr. Panaro pointed out. Both had "exemplary school records" and were "intoxicated" during the burglary, he said.

"Normally, intoxication is no excuse for a crime," Mr. Panaro said. But it was more of a "mark than anything."

Neither man intended to use the stolen liquors "for personal gain," he said. Both are affluent people. It wasn't for money.

Mr. Panaro, who graduated from the University last June, is scheduled to enter the Peace Corps, and he could not do so until the serious charge against him, Mr. Panaro pointed out.

TALKS ON DRUGS PLANNED
For Littlebrook Parents. A series of four coffee hours at which parents and children at the Littlebrook School will hear discussions on the drug problem has been scheduled for this spring.

The first will be held next Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kimball, 107 Meadowbrook Drive. Those who live in the area are invited.

Littlebrook is the first elementary school in Princeton which has a program for parents. At the instigation of Lloyd Taylor, it has been arranged, in his words, "to explore ways in which parents can work to avoid problems in their own homes."

Speakers at Tuesday's meeting will be P.D. Thomas Prossano, the Borough's juvenile officer, and Mrs. Hilda Garde Waletzky, a social worker for the Drug Abuse program and the Child Guidance Center.

LIONS' SALE IS ON
Lawn Fertilizer Offered. Fertilizer just in time for spring gardening will be delivered March 21 to area residents who order through members of the West Windsor Lion Club.

The Lions are holding their semi-annual fundraising sale through March 19, handling a full line of a nationally-known brand of lawn and garden products. All items are sold at fair-trade prices.

Proceeds of the sale will help support the West Windsor Lions' community services, including youth programs, civic improvement projects, and health and welfare activities.

For information, call chairman Ken Holaday at 799-1269.

HERBERT MARCUSE HERE
For Spencer Trask Lectures. Herbert Marcuse, the controversial philosopher whose critiques of contemporary society have become best sellers on college campuses around the world, will speak on "The Cultural Revolution in the West," in a two-part lecture series at Princeton University Monday and Wednesday.

The talks will be open free to the public at Alexander Hall at 8:30 both nights.

Educated in his native Germany, the 45-year-old philosopher arrived in this country in 1934, and has spent most of his time teaching on college campuses; for eight years at Columbia, nine years at Brandeis, and shorter stints at Yale, Harvard and the University of California. The New York Times has written of him, "In terms of day-to-day effect, Herbert Marcuse may be the most important philosopher alive."

His published works include "One-Dimensional Man," which made him a hero of the New Left, and earlier examinations of the influence of Hegel, Marx and Freud.

News Of The CHURCHES

TO PRESENT "MESSIAH"
On Passion Sunday, Mrs. Mary Krimmel will direct the voice adult choir of First Presbyterian Church in the second section of Handel's "Messiah" at the 11 a.m. service this Sunday.

The choir will be augmented by Anna Royer at the organ and voice quartet under the direction of Joseph Kovacs. Soloists are Charlene Weickel, soprano; Nancy Dodson, alto; Warren Dodson, tenor; and Edward Fox, bass.

During Advent the choir presents the Christmas pageant of Handel's great oratorio.

Part the second, the Lenten Service, sets the stage for Passion Week.

Choir members include Helen Duncan, Clair Caylor, Marion LaBar, Barbara Lamb, Nancy Nelson, Kristin Schumann, Susan Dodson and Charlene Weickel, soprano; Anna Royer, alto; Warren Dodson, tenor; and Edward Fox, bass.

James Clapp, Warren Dodson, James Hastings, Ben LaBar, and Arthur Tempel, tenors; James Amick, Larry Huel, Henry Broad, John Clum, Edward Fox, Harry Gayley, Ernest Johnson, George McCaulan, Theodore Wal and Stephen Weickel, basses.

Louise Gros, writing in the church publication, "First," notes, in the 1970 performance at First Church, director Mary Krimmel continues several innovations introduced last season. The Lenten portion of "Messiah" begins with the great chorus, "Behold the Lamb of God," and usually climaxes 45 minutes later with the famous "Hallelujah Chorus." Last year Mrs. Krimmel chose to end instead with the final "Amen Chorus" because "Messiah" itself closes, feeling that the uplift of the "Hallelujah" should be reserved for Easter itself or for this Christmas Eve Advent.

The 1970 performance also will include the new Advent performed chorus, "The Lord Gave the Word," preceded by a lesser known tenor solo with the bass aria, "The Art Gave Up on High." Mrs. Krimmel will also add from the repertoire an alto and tenor duet, "O Death Where Is Thy Sting?"

LEAVING: The Rev. Eliot A. Leaving, associate minister of First Presbyterian Church, departs on March 31 to join Smith's World Enterprises, Pittsburgh, where he will write for the children's television program "Misterogers Neighborhood." Award winner. He will also write church school curriculum from the show as well as television specials for children, designed to help them in times of stress. The Rev. Rogers of the show is also a Presbyterian minister.

The ads up to date, have brought forth the grand total of 4 listings, 2 of which have already been sold. We need more. So if you have a house to sell, please tell us. An odd result of the campaign, has been that we have been presented with several excellent commercial listings. They are real good opportunities. The situation reminds one of the "acres of diamonds" theme. Opportunity is at your feet! READ THIS AND THINK! ## AUDREY SHORT INC. REALTOR

163 Nassau St. 921-9222

Stony Brook

1792

40 Miles to Phila.

56 Miles to N. York

Here are the remains of Worth's (or Bruere's) Mill, dating from 1715, which ceased operation only in the beginning of the twentieth century. The highway was formerly at meadow level and the massive masonry of the mill seemed impervious to time, but the raising of the road and the use of the west wall as a retaining wall weakened the whole structure. The mill links modern Princeton with the earliest settlers of the region, deriving its name from John Worth, a Quaker who came to Stony Brook in 1696 and bought the property on which the mill was erected. His descendants kept it in the family until well after the middle of the nineteenth century, when it became the property of the late Joseph H. Bruere, who, as the motherless nephew of Mrs. Josiah Worth, had lived in the homestead across the bridge from the time he was an infant. He died there in 1908. The house, known as "Bruere Hillside", was built in 1813 as the successor to the first Worth homestead which stood on the crest of the hill and was destroyed by fire. In rebuilding, the site was chosen lower down the hill and closer to a remarkable well."

"notes on site area from Princeton Past and Present by V Lansing Collings 1931, 1945 — Pr. Univ. Press. (The tablet is on what is left of the mill wall down by the bridge).

FINE DESIGN MAKES THE DIFFERENCE

between this, and other colonial houses of comparable size. Renowned Princeton architect, Rolf Baubach's touches are everywhere from the proportions of the exterior to the handmade paneling of a fireplace wall, and the result is an air of elegance and authenticity. From an unusual two level entrance hall, there are two steps up to living room and library, each with fireplace and rich detail. The dining room is flooded with sunlight from a wide bank of windows facing south as is the cheerful kitchen. There's a big laundry-mud room for the children and a powder room. On the second floor, there's a master bedroom with 4 closets and bath, plus three twin bedrooms and another bath. Paneled playroom with fireplace. Over two wooded acres with fenced and filtered swimming pool. In a most attractive Princeton Township setting. Offered for the first time, $92,000
